

Mitchell Loses His Income Tax Battle in U. S. Supreme Court

Government to Collect
$364,354 Deficiency
Assessment

RULING IS REVERSED

No Decision Announced
On Law Governing
Holding Companies

Washington—(AP)—The government succeeded in the supreme court today in its effort to collect a $364,354 deficiency assessment imposed against Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City company of New York, on the ground of "fraud with intent to evade" paying 1929 income tax.

Justice Brandeis delivered the opinion that reversed a ruling by the second circuit court of appeals in favor of Mitchell.

Mitchell was acquitted in June, 1933, after trial on an indictment charging that he fraudulently attempted to evade a $728,709 tax upon his net income for 1929.

In December, 1933, the committee of internal revenue sought to collect the $728,709 tax, plus $364,354 imposed in addition by reason of alleged fraud.

The circuit court of appeals at New York sustained the $728,709 assessment and the supreme court last Oct. 11 refused to review that ruling. That left it in effect.

However, the circuit court held that the 50 per cent addition was barred by the prior acquittal of Mitchell in the criminal proceedings.

The court failed to deliver an opinion on litigation involving constitutionality of the 1935 act regulating public utility holding companies. The opinion may come next Monday or later.

Other Actions
Among other actions today: The justices agreed to stay, pending the filing of a petition for rehearing, their recent action in refusing to review the conviction of 12 persons on charges of conspiracy to commit election fraud at Kansas City, Mo., during the 1936 election.

The court agreed to review a lower court decision enjoining the International Ladies Garment Workers' union from picketing the Donnelly Garment company of Kansas City, or attempting to unionize its employees.

The court, by overruling previous decisions, widened the field of federal and state taxation.

Income Tax Ruling
In a 5 to 2 decision it ruled that the federal government could tax income derived from land leased from a state and that a state could tax income derived from land leased from the federal government.

The federal trade commission won a supreme court review of its effort to continue in effect an order directing the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company to "cease and desist" from selling tires to Sears Roebuck and Company at prices lower than those accorded other retailers.

The high court consented to pass upon a decision of the sixth circuit court of appeals, setting aside the commission's order on the group Goodyear had cancelled the contracts and there was no longer and reason for the litigation.

7 Killed When French
Plane Crashes in India

New Delhi, India—(AP)—Three French passengers and the four-man crew of an Air France airliner were killed today when the plane crashed in flames near Dacca, capital of the state of Bengal in central India. One of the passengers was a woman.

A rescue party, including the prime minister of the state, went to the scene but the bodies of all aboard had been trapped in the flaming wreckage.

The plane, in the regular service between Hanoi, French Indochina, and Calcutta, was taking off from the town of Dum Dum in Bengal. It left Calcutta last night west bound.

WILL ACCEPT POST

Washington—(AP)—Thurman W. Arnold (above), 47-year-old Yale professor, notified the justice department today he would accept a nomination as assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division.

Attorney General Cummings announced Saturday that Arnold was his choice for this post, succeeding Robert H. Jackson who became solicitor general last week. The nomination must be made by the president and confirmed by the senate.

TVA Chairman to Retain Position
Despite Critics

'To Surrender Does Not Seem Right Course,'
Morgan Declares

Washington—(AP)—Arthur E. Morgan indicated today he would stick to his post as chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority despite suggestions of his two co-directors that he resign.

"To surrender the chance to make some contribution to decency and effectiveness in government does not seem to be the right course," he said.

Expressing a firm belief in the social and economic aims of the TVA experiment, Morgan added:

"For those great possibilities to be lost by habits of misrepresentation, intrigue and arbitrary action seems tragic."

His latest thrust in an open battle with Harcourt Morgan and David E. Lilienthal, the other TVA directors, disclosed that dissension had existed in the agency for nearly three years.

Hoped For Agreement
Chairman Morgan related how he had put off making public his complaints until last week, in the hope of a settlement. In a public statement at that time he had declared he contended "with an attitude of conspiracy, secretiveness and bureaucratic manipulation," and asked a broad investigation of the TVA.

Later, President Roosevelt made public the views of Harcourt Morgan.

Hearing Is Ordered on Handset Phone Charges

Madison—(AP)—The public service commission ordered 30 Wisconsin telephone companies today to show cause why extra charges for handset telephones should not be abolished. Hearing dates will be set later.

The commission said users of the modern style instrument pay extra charges of $75,000 to $100,000 annually.

In the Wisconsin Telephone company rate case the commission reduced the charge of handset service from 25 cents to 8 cents a month. It also fixed the same rate for other utilities under an option of charging 25 cents a month for a two year period only.

The commission investigation indicates the cost of handset instruments has been reduced to less than $7 compared with $11 in 1935 when the reduction orders were made.

The order to show cause affects the Wisconsin Telephone company and all of the larger telephone utilities in the state.

Gottfried von Cramm
Arrested in Germany

Berlin—(AP)—Baron Gottfried von Cramm, Germany's great tennis player, was arrested today by the criminal police on "serious charges."

While admitting Von Cramm had been arrested, police headquarters declined to divulge the nature of the charges. It was admitted authoritatively later, however, that he had been taken into custody on "suspicion of moral delinquencies."

The tennis star had arrived home only a few days ago after a worldwide competitive tour.

Now 28 years old, Baron von Cramm has been listed in the "first ten" of world tennis players since 1932. He ranked second to Fred Perry in the world rankings for 1936 and second to America's Don Budge last year.

Von Cramm won the German championship four times and the French title twice and reached the final round at Wimbledon three times, losing to Perry in 1935 and to Budge last year.

Take Steps to Avert Disease In Flood Areas

No Cases of Typhoid Reported but Conditions
Are Dangerous

$65,000,000 LOSS

10,000 Homeless Being
Cared for in California Districts

Los Angeles—(AP)—Health officials, alert against the threat of pestilence, made typhoid inoculations throughout flood devastated southern California today.

No cases of the disease have been reported, but sanitation conditions were reported dangerous.

Nearby San Bernardino, where the water supply was cut off.

Dr. J. A. Champion, Colton health officer, said there was "some danger" typhoid might break out. Water distilled in a citrus by-products factory was being rationed out to residents.

The toll of dead and missing in the giant deluge caused by prolonged torrential rains last week was raised to 176 with reports from the San Bernardino region last night.

Most recent estimates of damage to private and public property still stood at the $65,000,000 mark.

Armies of Workers Out
Armies of workers labored to dig the flooded area from under its blanket of silt and mud. Ten thousand homeless were being cared for.

The casualty list by counties read: Los Angeles—Thirty-four identified dead; 12 unidentified dead; 25 missing.

Orange—Nineteen identified dead; 4 unidentified dead; 17 missing.

San Bernardino—Nine identified dead; 2 unidentified dead; 23 missing.

Riverside—Three identified dead; 22 missing.

Ventura—Three identified dead; one missing.

Officials minimized threats of further floods and said dams are adequate to accommodate expected rains.

Telephone and telegraph communication was normal. Most highways were open to necessary traffic. Railroads accommodated passengers with the aid of buses.

$8,000,000 Naval Experiment Fund

To be Used for 'Mystery'
Patrol Boats and
New Dirigible

Washington—(AP)—The navy is getting ready to spend $8,000,000 on experimental air and surface craft which some officials eye dubiously but nevertheless are eager to try.

The bill-dollars fleet expansion bill to build a dirigible and swift "mystery" coast patrol boats recently developed by foreign powers.

Concentrating on replacement of aging battleships and other large craft, the navy heretofore has turned its back on the possibilities of a "mosquito fleet." Officers have called such craft ill-suited to American defense needs.

Senate Borah (R-Idaho) declared in a statement last night, however, that testimony before the house naval committee left no doubt the expansion program contemplated something more than national defense.

"Every navy of any nation is always for national defense," said Borah, senior Republican member of the senate foreign relations committee.

"Defense" Always Pica
"Every war in these times is for defense. The world was for defense on both sides. Japan is now, according to her statements, conducting a war against China in self-defense."

It does not believe that this huge spending program can be justified upon any reasonable conception of national defense. Borah added, declaring it was "a long step toward world bankruptcy and possibly toward war."

The bill probably will come before the house later this week. Administration lieutenants expressed certainty the provision for experimental work would be approved by both chambers.

New Yorker Tells House Tax Revision Plan Would Retain "Punitive" Federal Levies

Washington—(AP)—Representative Lammock (D-Ohio), told the house today the tax revision bill's surtax on closely held corporations was "discriminatory and unjust."

"There is no question in the world this tax is aimed at somebody," he said. "Who is it? Is it the newspapers which are critical of the administration? Most of them are closely held. Is it big corporations like Henry Ford? If so, this tax would murder a lot of other people to get at them."

"Someone, somewhere, is after some corporation or some group of corporations. If there were only one corporation subject to this tax, I'd be against it because of its principle."

Washington—(AP)—Representative Fish (R-N.Y.) told the house today the tax revision bill would continue "destructive, punitive taxes" that have "destroyed business confidence, prolonged the depression and retarded recovery."

Resuming a Republican denunciation when the house started its third day's work on the measure, Fish shouted:

"It is a makeshift, a snare and a delusion. It doesn't balance the budget. It doesn't assume to balance the budget."

"It makes no reference to tax exempt securities—the biggest single loophole by which the rich avoid taxes."

While the house debated the tax bills, the senate, laying aside temporarily the government reorganization measure, took up the District of Columbia appropriation.

Many Needy Families
The senate unemployment committee, turning its study to rural conditions, heard from a WPA official that many farm families were suffering great privation.

The 1936 Remington-Rand strike at Hoon, N. Y., and a study of it made by the National Association of Manufacturers occupied the senate civil liberties committee.

Republican house members talked of getting a Democratic Representative Lammock of Ohio, to lead their fight for complete repeal of the undistributed profits tax.

If they follow that strategy, aimed at winning more Democratic votes, the repeal amendment to the tax revision bill would be offered in Lammock's name.

Today or tomorrow was acknowledged by legislators to be the first test of house sentiment on the administration's tax program.

As approved by the ways and means committee, the bill would impose no undistributed profits

Nebraska Official Is Given Prison Sentence

Lincoln, Neb.—(AP)—District Judge E. B. Chappell sentenced Lieutenant Governor Walter H. Jurgensen today to hard labor in the Nebraska penitentiary. Jurgensen was convicted of embezzlement last Feb. 9.

Judge Chappell pronounced sentence and fixed bond at $4,000. Defense Counsel R. F. Stout immediately gave notice of appeal to the Nebraska Supreme court.

Jurgensen was convicted of embezzling $549.71 from Chester C. Kaderli, Union Pacific station agent at Potter, in 1934 in a stock and bond transaction.

Sheriff Who Resigned
Confers With Attorney

Madison—(AP)—Sheriff Anthony Grell of Florence county, who resigned last week after an investigation by the state into conditions in his county, came to Milwaukee today to confer with his attorney, Morris Podell.

Grell, who will remain in office until Governor LaFollette appoints a successor, said he was conferring with the attorney "because I want vindication."

"I want my name cleared," he added. "I am a mechanic, and I can fix anything from a watch to an automobile. I admit that I fixed some slot machines, but my business is fixing things."

He was released Saturday by Attorney General Orland S. Loomis with the governor mentioned the operation of slot machines in Florence county and said the sheriff had repaired some of them.

Buckman Company Assets Won't Net
Creditors Much, Receivers Believe

Madison—(AP)—Receivers of the defunct B. E. Buckman company, in a report on file with federal court here today, expressed doubt that assets of the investment house will yield very much for creditors.

The report was at variance with one made by Miles C. Riley, special master in bankruptcy proceedings who told Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone, in asking appointment of a trustee, that there were "actual assets and substantial possible assets" for creditors.

The receivers, Dudley H. Davis and Howard L. Smith, said the Buckman company had an influence on the market for securities it was selling in this state and that collapse of the company seriously impaired values to the extent that "no true market" now exists for many of the securities.

The report gave no estimate of what the losses to investors will be nor how much can be recovered but said that the assets probably will be small. It listed securities

Peace Confabs May be Factor In Re-Arming

Britain to Push Program
If Talks With Reich
And Italy Fail

POLICY IS OUTLINED

Chamberlain Tries to Keep Europe From 'Cataracts of War'

London—(AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons today that if the vital peace talks with Italy and Germany, opening this week, failed Britain would speed up her already gigantic re-arming program.

But he said if the negotiations succeeded, disarmament would follow in due course.

The conservative majority repeatedly cheered the prime minister as he explained his policy of re-arming and at the same time trying to prevent Europe drifting "toward the cataclysm of war" by means of frank talks with the leaders of Italy and Germany.

Answering opposition charges that he was biased in favor of the dictators, Chamberlain in a fighting speech replied:

For individual liberty "I have to deal with a world in which dictatorships exist. I have no interests in other systems of government except insofar as they react on other countries. I have no bias in favor of nazism, fascism or bolshevism, because all of them seem to be inconsistent with what is all-important to me because it is the root of my political creed—that is individual liberty."

Repeating the disclosure in last week's white paper that $7,500,000,000 would not be enough to finance the five year re-arming plan, Chamberlain said:

"It is too soon to say what figure can be substituted but I am afraid that the house must expect a substantial advance upon it."

"I need not impress upon you the gravity of these figures or the prospects which lie before us if no alleviation of the situation can be obtained."

Chamberlain expressed his "earnest hope for the success of our efforts for European appeasement to be followed in due course by disarmament"—referring to the impending negotiations with Rome and Berlin.

Seek Quick Trial
For Young Slayer

Prosecution Won't Ask
Death Penalty for Theodore Daniels

Chicago—(AP)—Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers planned a speedy trial today for 16-year-old Theodore Daniels, Jr., charged with the slaying of his mother.

If the small, blonde youth is indicted by the grand jury, scheduled to convene today, the state will not demand the death penalty, Meyers said.

The crime was not premeditated, he said, nor was it committed in the commission of a felony.

"Rather it was a momentary heat of passion," the prosecutor asserted, "and the death penalty would be unwarranted."

A coroner's jury recommended Saturday that young Daniels be held to the grand jury on a charge of murder. Police Captain Herbert Burns testified the boy had confessed plunging a bread knife into his mother's throat last Thursday because she berated him for truancy from high school.

Meanwhile, the youth's defense was uncertain. His lawyer, Edward R. Litsinger, said he planned to have two alienists examine the boy.

Young Daniels passed a quiet Sunday at the county jail. No visitors were permitted, not even his father, and jailers said he sobbed intermittently.

Minor Arrest Results
In Capture of Slayer

Madison—(AP)—Milish Mondich, 46, was back in Jolet (Illinois) prison today because he made the mistake of participating in a picket demonstration and subjecting himself to arrest on a minor charge.

Mondich was arrested Saturday under the name of Peter Brody, after disturbance at the A. F. Galun and Sons Corporation tannery. His fingerprints were found to correspond with those of a convict who escaped 13 years ago with 30 more years to serve on a murder sentence.

Detective Captain Adolph Kraemer said "Brown" admitted he was Mondich. Two others arrested on the picket line were released on $35 bail.

Receiver of Banks Faces
Charges of Embezzling

Shawano—(AP)—Charles C. Vogl of Anawa waived a preliminary examination, when arraigned before county Judge C. B. Bille's today on charges of embezzling $4,000 as receiver of banks at Anawa, Eland and Bowler.

Vogl was released on $1,000 bond pending trial before Circuit Judge E. V. Werner.

Charges against Vogl were filed by Norman W. Hahn of the state banking commission.

He also sent to the senate the nomination of Bunk Gardner of Kentucky to be federal district judge of the Panama Canal Zone to succeed Judge Charles Harwood who resigned effective March 10.

Former Heroine of Red Revolution Is
Witness at Trial

Says She Heard Bucharin
Wanted Lenin, Stalin
Assassinated

Moscow—(AP)—Barbara Yakovleva, once a heroine of the bolshevik revolution, came from prison today to testify against Nikolai Bucharin, like heretofore fallen from the highest ranks of Russia's leadership.

On the witness stand in Moscow's greatest treason trial, Madame Yakovleva, a large, faded old woman of 53, testified she heard in 1918 that Bucharin wanted Nikolai Lenin and Joseph Stalin assassinated if they insisted on peace with Germany.

Madame Yakovleva, like Bucharin, was a close associate of Lenin in the early stages of the revolution. Once she was head of the dread Cheka, or secret police. Last year she occupied for a time the post of commissar of finance, from which she went to prison.

Her testimony, delivered nervously in a slow, weak, quavering monotone, was a high spot of the afternoon session of the trial of Bucharin and 20 others on charges of treason and murder.

Standing stiffly next to a microphone in front of the judges' stand, clad in a plain blue serge suit, with her bobbed hair still dark, Madame Yakovleva said Bucharin had admitted instigating

Levine Believes
Son Still Alive

Also Thinks He Is Dealing With Kidnapers of New York Boy

New Rochelle, N. Y.—(AP)—Murray Levine, father of kidnaped 12-year-old Peter Levine, said today that he believed his son was still alive, despite continued failure to make actual contact with the abductors. He also said he believed he was dealing with the true kidnapers.

Commenting on the last ransom note, but declining to say when he received it, Levine said:

"With the last note there was some indication my boy was alive, and that I was 'dealing with the right party.'"

Police drained Indian lake today in the Bronx in search of the boy's body.

Levine was cheered but slightly by the skepticism of police that the boy had been thrown in the lake—as they were "tipped" in an anonymous telephone call.

Hazard from his long vigil, Levine said the abductors had made no answer to his announcement the $30,000 ransom was ready—and had given him no indication his son was alive.

3 Face Trial in Slaying
Of Tavern Proprietor

Port Washington, Wis.—(AP)—Trial of three men for the Jan. 15 hold-up-slaying of Alex Baumgarten, tavern operator, was adjourned today for one week by Circuit Judge C. M. Davison. Defendants are Fred C. May, Lawrence Sargent and Orin Bridges.

May is charged with first degree murder as the actual slayer, and the others with being accessories before the fact. Baumgarten was fatally wounded as he attempted to leave the bar room of his tavern during the holdup.

Loss of Warship Weakens Blockade of Government Ports

TORPEDO HITS MARK

British Destroyers Save
More Than 400
Survivors

Madrid—(AP)—In swift revenge for the government's first big naval victory—the torpedoing of the insurgents' cruiser Baleares—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's army raided the port of Cartagena five times between midnight and noon today.

The government communicate announcing the raids failed to mention casualties but said the government naval force based there escaped damage.

Madrid—(AP)—Destruction of a crack 10,000-ton insurgent cruiser in a naval battle off Cartagena left a gaping hole today in the insurgent fleet blockade of Spanish government ports.

(Reports to the London admiral from the British destroyers Kempfenfeld and Boreas said they rescued more than 400 men from the stricken ship before it sank in flames, tipped by a torpedo and pounded by aerial bombs.)

(These reports definitely identified the cruiser as the Baleares, whose normal complement was 765 men. The fate of others of the crew was not determined.)

Spanish government authorities here had not determined whether it was the Baleares or her sister-ship, the Canarias, which was destroyed. Both were new—the Canarias was completed in 1935, the Baleares in 1937—and they were almost identical in appearance. Both participated in the battle yesterday.

Government Rejoices
But regardless of which cruiser it was, the loss was regarded by jubilant Spanish government authorities as certain to decrease the insurgents' chance of effectively enforcing their blockade of the Spanish Mediterranean coast. The government fleet returned unharmed to its Cartagena base.

The battle, which may have an important effect on the outcome of the Spanish civil war, resulted from a chance encounter of government and insurgent fleets Sunday about 70 miles off the port of Cartagena.

The cruiser was struck amidships by a torpedo fired from the government destroyer Lepanto as the insurgent warships maneuvered in battle line. There was a tremendous explosion, followed by an outbreak of flames, and the vessel began to list heavily.

Government warplanes increased the damage by strafing the cruiser with machine gun fire and peppering it with incendiary bombs.

Aviators reported a bomb struck another insurgent cruiser of the same size as the torpedoed vessel, leading to the belief that both the Canarias and Baleares were hit.

Believe Many Perished
Each cruiser's crew strength is 765 men. Loss of life on the torpedoed cruiser was believed severe, despite the rescue efforts of the British destroyers, which carried survivors to other insurgent vessels.

One British seaman was killed and eight others wounded slightly when a government warplane dropped a bomb near the destroyer Boreas while it engaged in rescue work.

Eight vessels were in the insurgent battle fleet, led by the cruisers Almirante Cervera, Canarias and Baleares.

(Reports reaching the Spanish frontier at Perpignan predicted that if the Spanish government fleet were able to hold its own hereafter, instead of being forced to take refuge in port, the outcome of the war might be affected by the government being able to obtain more war supplies.)

U. S. Lays Claim to
2 Small Islands for Commercial Flying

Washington—(AP)—The White House said today the "sole reason" for the United States' claims of sovereignty over two small islands in the central Pacific ocean was for development of commercial aviation—not for war.

"It has nothing to do with war or war plans," said Stephen T. Early, press secretary after a talk with President Roosevelt.

The president issued an executive order last Thursday, directing the secretary of the interior to take control and jurisdiction of Canton and Enderbury islands in the Phoenix group, 1,300 miles southwest of Hawaii. The United States previously had claimed authority over several other islands in the same vicinity, including Howland and Baker islands.

Early said final claim to the islands must await negotiations with other claimants, notably Great Britain.

Japanese Troops Take Southwest District of Shensi

Capture Railroad Terminus Near 'Big Bend' Of Yellow River

Shanghai—(7)—Japanese troops swept down the Shensi railway today to the extreme southwest corner of Shensi province and from six strategic "jumping off" points along the north bank of the Yellow river, struggled to cross into the heart of central China.

The victorious drive southward through Shensi was climaxed by the capture of Chaotun, railway terminus near the "big bend" of the Yellow river. Chaotun is just across the mighty river from Tung-kwan, on the important east-west Lunghai railway.

Chinese forces defending the south bank of the river have resisted thus far, but military observers believe the Japanese are ready for a supreme effort.

For days they have been "softening" Chinese resistance with incessant shell fire and airplane bombardment. These activities and artillery attacks became more severe today, apparently to forestall any Chinese counter offensive and to clear the way for a crossing.

Meanwhile, the Japanese have been keeping in mind the possibilities of extending their operations even farther to the west. A body of troops was marching through a snowstorm against Hoku, in the extreme northwest part of the Shensi province. Chinese troops there retreated across the frozen Yellow river into Shensi province, just inside the great wall.

The conquest of Shensi province, complete now except for "mopping up" straggling Chinese units, means that Yeng Si-Shang, another famed Chinese war lord, has been driven from what was virtually his kingdom.

His Shensi domain's 66,000 square miles of territory and 12,000,000 population have been added to the territory the Japanese count as taken in their punitive invasion of China.

loss of life there was comparatively small. Four hundred cabins and other buildings were destroyed.

Officials conferred today on raising funds for rehabilitation. Earl E. Kelley, state director of public works, said $1,000,000 would be made available to repair and restore bridges and highways.

The Red Cross reported 5,601 homes badly damaged or destroyed in Los Angeles, Riverside, San Bernardino, Orange and Ventura counties. It asked $300,000 from southern California donors for rehabilitation. There are 3,000 unfed and hungry floodstricken migratory farmworkers in Madera county, but food and medical assistance was being sent "as fast as possible," Dr. Omer Mills, farm security administration regional economist, said.

Attack Surtax
But larger corporations would pay what would be, in effect, a 16 per cent income tax, plus a 4 per cent surtax on any undistributed profits. It was this surtax which the Republicans wanted to eliminate.

Representative Vinson (D-Ky.), chairman of a subcommittee which drafted the revenue bill, predicted the Democratic majority would have votes to spare to defeat the repeal proposal.

The vote will be followed by scraps over the capital gains tax and a proposed new surtax on closely-held corporations. A vote on the entire measure may be reached late Wednesday, after which the house will consider the naval expansion program.

'Most Photographed Girl of the 90's' Dies in Obscurity

Pittsburgh—(7)—A belle of the gay 90's and once toasted as "the most photographed girl in New York," Evelyn Granville died here penniless and in obscurity.

The identity of the lame, 66-year-old former actress, known to fellow workers in a WPA sewing room as Mrs. Evelyn G. Scott, was disclosed today by friends who cared for her during a two-month illness.

Newspaper clippings in her room at a modest boarding house told of the one-time glamour girl who was a friend of Lillian Russell, "Diamond Jim" Brady and "Teddy" Roosevelt.

Crippled in a street car accident, she was forced from the theater jobs and successively worked as a store clerk, a clerk in a county office and finally in a WPA sewing room.

gan and Lillenthal that the chairman sought to "rule or ruin" in TVA.

Chairman Morgan's latest statement, made public last night, was a letter which he had written on Feb. 14 to Representative Maverick (D-Texas).

Responding to Maverick's assertion that TVA had contracted to sell the bulk of its power to "monopolistic" companies instead of to public power agencies, he said relations of the TVA and "the aluminum company" failed to protect the public interest.

(Presumably, he referred to power contracts made with a Tennessee plant of the Aluminum company of America.)

In another power contract with private industry, Morgan said, he discovered a "joker" which would have permitted the Arkansas Power and Light company "to buy prime power at secondary power rates."

Propose Purchase Plan
Meanwhile, Directors Harcourt Morgan and Lillenthal proceeded independently with a proposal for negotiating purchase of private utilities in the TVA area.

Lillenthal disclosed their "comprehensive plan for a long-term adjustment of relations between TVA and private power companies" at a press conference late Saturday.

Wendell Wilkie, president of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, replied immediately that he would welcome an opportunity to discuss government purchase of these companies.

Senator Norris (I-Neb.), father of the TVA act, said that as he understood it, a "basis for discussion" would be provided.

"I think this is a good thing," he added.

Observers noted, however, a marked difference in terms proposed by the two parties. Lillenthal said a purchase price should be based primarily on "actual legitimate cost of the properties less depreciation." This he identified with President Roosevelt's "prudent investment" principle.

Wilkie stressed "the importance of acquiring and paying for utility properties as going concerns."

Lillenthal said the government did not propose to take over the utility properties "in toto," but would depend instead on purchase of part of the facilities by cities, power districts and rural associations.

Attendance Records for 6 Weeks Made by Pupils

Fifteen pupils of the Cherry Hill school, in Seymour, were neither absent nor tardy during the third six weeks of school, according to a report of Miss Elaine Foley, teacher. They are Irene and Mary Ann Ganter, Ralph and Albert Maas Alvin Gehrke, Robert Foley, Roselleen Liebscher, Henry, Gardina and Theresa Kaster, Donald and Rita Landwehr, Helen and Mary Ann Liessgang.

John N. Garvey, teacher at the Silver Lake school, town of Oneida, reported the following students perfect in attendance during the period: Ramona King, Levaner King, Lawrence King, Gertrude King, Kenneth Skenandore, Dolores Manders, Harvey Gorsan and Lorraine Skenandore. Pupils perfect in attendance during the entire semester were Levaner King, Lawrence King and Gertrude King.

ing determined efforts to modify the program.

In a statement last night, Senator Byrd (D-Va.) asserted the bill would keep federal spending above $8,000,000,000 a year and would "blast the last hope that the government can balance its budget."

Whether another administration proposal—wage-house legislation—would be considered at this session remained uncertain.

Remington-Rand Strike Data Is Put In Records of Civil Liberties Body

Washington—(7)—Chairman LaFollette (P-Wis.) put into the senate civil liberties committee's record today an endorsement by the National Manufacturers' association of the program by which the 1938 Remington-Rand strike in Ilion, N. Y., was ended. He then entered a national labor relations board decision condemning the program.

The association's report on the strike, given in a bulletin to members, was used before the labor board's action.

The labor board decision cited Remington-Rand for "unfair labor practice." It accused the company of importing "strike breakers" and using "a publicity campaign" to cloak the ruthlessness of its tactics.

Walter B. Weisenburger, executive secretary of the N.A.M., and Noel Sargent, secretary, testified that they sent a member of their staff to Ilion to obtain facts for the article in the bulletin.

They said they acted on the suggestion of Remington-Rand officials.

Accompanied Reporter
Weisenburger said he accompanied the reporter who wrote the article.

The article was headed "Local Action Effective!"

"The N.A.M. appreciates the opportunity," it said, "of bringing to the attention of industrial America the constructive manner in which this controversy was handled by these villages."

After describing the formation of a "citizens committee" and a "back-to-work movement" on the part of employees, the article said, "Ilion has made a real contribution to civic dignity."

Sargent and Weisenburger agreed that the article attributed the end of the strike to the "community" program it described. They conceded also that the article gave N.A.M. approval to the program, at least for "that particular local situation."

Weisenburger said, however, that the article "reported conditions as we found them" and that if the strike breaking activities of Remington-Rand were, present in the situation at the time, "we didn't find it out."

Iron Works' Equipment Used in Development of Important Paper Process

Laboratory and semi-commercial equipment made by the Valley Iron Works were used by Dr. Charles H. Herty, New York, in perfecting the method of making newsprint from Southern pine which was described in a March of Time film shown Friday, Saturday, and Sunday at the Rio theatre.

Dr. Herty visited in Appleton in 1930, when he first started work on the problem, and conferred with Valley Iron Works officials. By 1932 he had proved that suitable news print could be made from Southern pine. His achievement had much to do with the rise of the paper mill industry in the south.

Labor Group to Meet Each Week

Program for Erection or Purchase of Building Will be Studied

A series of weekly meetings, the first scheduled for tomorrow night, will be held this month by the Appleton Labor Temple association for discussion of financing the program to erect or purchase a building for labor activities.

Officers and delegates of the various unions that make up the Appleton Trades and Labor council will confer with association members at the meetings in the Salvation Army temple each Tuesday night during the month. Directors and officers of the association will be elected at a final meeting Wednesday night, March 30.

Reports of committees working on the campaign to improve Appleton labor's headquarters will be heard. The decision to build or buy a building was made by labor officials last December when it became apparent the second-floor hall on College avenue did not provide enough room. The four councils and 33 unions in the city now are holding meetings in two others buildings besides the Trades and Labor hall.

Young Republicans Fail To Appear for Meeting

Edgar H. Goode, Minocqua, state chairman of the Young Republicans, called the Stevens Point meeting.

Uncle Sam Considers Spy Business Over-Inflated Custom of the Old World

BY ALEXANDER E. GEORGE

Washington—To your Uncle Sam, this spy business is an over-inflated old world custom. He recalls that the Babylonians and the Israelites had some espionage "smoothies." He also knows spies never have been a serious threat to this country.

While G-men recently got a lot of publicity by arresting a U. S. army deserter, an American soldier and a German girl on espionage charges, seasoned military men will tell you that:

About 85 per cent of the so-called military "secrets" that spies obtain, and try to peddle for a price, are available through regular channels of unguarded military information—published reports and articles in service magazines.

Vital information is so guarded that it's a 100-to-1 shot your average spy can't get within shooting distance of it. These secrets are not accessible to lower rank officers. Few copies of important papers are made, the officers in possession of them give receipts and there is a constant check on their safe-keeping.

Popular estimates that 10,000 spies are on the job in Europe today are melodramatic exaggerations. The arms race among elbow-to-elbow nations has greatly increased espionage activity but nine out of every 10 so-called spies are amateurs whose reports are of scant value if not downright undependable.

The operations of a capable espionage agent rarely come to public attention. Few of them are linked with a military organization because such affiliation would make their detection easier and because establishment of such a connection would discredit the military organization involved.

Women operatives may give a romantic touch to the secret service but most espionage agencies do not rate women's services, in war or peace, in the class with those of proficient men. Beautiful women sometimes are effective trappers of smitten officers but scarcely one out of 100 officers is gullible enough to be thus duped by women.

Famed Mata Hari, dancer-siren who in the World War whiffled information from allied officers she had vanquished, was not a great spy. Her crude tactics and her passion for display made detection by the French military intelligence comparatively easy.

Even Belle Boyd, the darling of the Confederacy, who daringly carried important military information through the Union lines, would have been up against a different proposition in the World War, where the counter-spy system was highly developed.

In wartime, military spying is regarded as a highly honorable profession, providing, of course, the spy is working for his own country.

It has been estimated there were 40,000 spies in Europe during the World War but military men say one-tenth of that number would be closer to facts.

The pay for free lance espionage work is higher during war, its value, the danger and the obstacles being greater. Death is the customary penalty for the captured wartime spy.

Since the World War only two persons have been tried and convicted under the U. S. espionage act of 1917. The first was Harry Thomas Thompson of Baltimore, former petty officer in the navy, who was convicted in 1936 and sentenced to 15 years in prison for selling information to an officer in the Japanese navy.

The second was former Lieut. Commander John S. Farnsworth, who last year began a 4 to 12 year term for conspiracy with two Japanese naval aides to communicate U. S. naval secrets.

Pershing Rests on Sun Porch of Sanatorium

Tucson, Ariz.—(7)—General John J. Pershing looked forward to basking in the sun again today as he continued his slow improvement.

The general, whose rally from a heart ailment and uremic poisoning last week amazed his physicians, spent 40 minutes on the sun porch of Desert sanatorium yesterday. It was the second day he had been out of doors.

Dr. Roland Davidson reported the general's blood pressure was "too low" but that there had been "no significant change" in his condition.

Dr. Davidson reiterated the 77-year-old World War commander's recovery "must of necessity be slow." Considerable improvement was reported over the weekend.

Utility Problem May Precipitate Election Issue

People May Want to Decide on National Policy of Public Ownership

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—President Roosevelt has decided to put the federal government into the biggest business venture it has ever entered—the electric light and power business.

Lawrence

He has put a gun to the head of one of the biggest utility systems in the country and now proposes that, unless this system sells at a price he himself, through his subordinates, will approve, the said utility system will face destruction and the investors a loss of all their savings.

Developments over the weekend have clarified the utility problem and it is definitely to a climax, toward which it has for several months been drifting. The principle involved is so far-reaching in its implications that the American people may want to decide at the coming congressional elections whether public ownership is to be a national policy, whether coal mines, automobile companies, railroads, department stores, retail shops and what not shall be owned by the federal government and thus inaugurate the beginning of the end of private capitalism in America.

The step is so tremendous that private investors will not want to lend any utility companies a nickel for needed expansion anywhere in the United States till they see just what kind of confiscation policy the federal government follows toward utilities in general.

For the price that Uncle Sam now pays for the private utility system it proposes to buy outright in the Tennessee valley must be fair and equitable, or else it will be construed by all investors to be a "forced sale," which is but another way of saying these properties will be bought only at "scrap value."

Believe in Idea
Inside the administration are many who believe in that idea. They think that a utility company has built up a list of customers and good will can be turned out of its territory by a city government whenever a franchise is terminated, so that this is a hazard the utilities must face and investors also. But the fly in the ointment is that the city governments are not buying out the utility systems with their own money nor are they charging the operating costs or interest charges they would have faced if they simply went into the business of municipal ownership as a competitive proposition. The cities are being given a 45 per cent outright gift of federal funds, and it is logical for utility investors to feel that all American citizens should be treated alike, and that, if there is any money to be had out of free, at least the federal government can do so to pay the actual cost of the utility systems now being forced into sale.

It is estimated that it will take somewhere between $150,000,000 and $175,000,000 for the purchase of the commonwealth and southern and other properties included in the TVA area so as to give a monopoly of power in that section to the Tennessee Valley authority and the cities to whom the power is to be sold.

One Man Controls
Here we have a situation in which one man—David Lilienthal—makes a deal involving $150,000,000 to $175,000,000 of public money—and he doesn't have to report to congress or get legislative authority for the entanglement of the federal government in such a heavy commitment. Lilienthal controls because he is one of the three directors of the TVA and he dominates his fellow director—Harcourt Morgan. He doesn't dominate the third, namely Dr. Arthur Morgan, who is demanding a congressional investigation and hints at scandal and mismanagement. Nor can Dr. Morgan be intimidated into resigning. He has four years more to serve and he cannot be removed only by a two-thirds vote of the United States senate and then only on proved cause.

The advocates of state socialism—for that is their true classification—are saying, of course, that there will be no federal money paid out for "watered stock," but, in this instance, Mr. Lilienthal is not buying any stock, but actual plant and equipment, and he says he is willing to pay cost less depreciation. On that point alone, the properties about to be forced out of private ownership will bring somewhere between $150,000,000 and $175,000,000. It is interesting to note that Wendell Willkie, president of the Commonwealth & Southern system, is willing to leave the price to a board of three such well known liberals as President Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin, President Compton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Professor Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard Law school. A man in the utility business doesn't offer to leave the price to any such group unless he is sure that the properties are worth enough to salvage something for the investors who paid hard cash for their securities and who doubtless will have to take some loss on their investment.

Extra Taxes
Incidentally, when the deal is completed, $10,000,000 a year in federal, state and city taxes will evaporate, and the states of Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama and the cities therein which engaged in the deal. The deal is completed, $10,000,000 a year in federal, state and city taxes will evaporate, and the states of Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama and the cities therein which engaged

DRIVE STAKE AT SITE OF EARLY METHODIST CHURCH

During his research work on history surrounding the old Grignon home at Kaukauna, William F. Wolf, Appleton, found the site where the first Methodist Episcopal church between Lake Michigan and the Pacific ocean and north of a point 50 miles south of Chicago was built. The site is in the athletic field of the Kimberly Clark mill at Kimberly.

In the above picture are members of the Outagamie County Historical society and prominent Methodists from this community who were present Saturday afternoon when a stake was driven into the ground at the site. It is planned to erect a memorial later this year.

ed in the power business will have to impose extra tax burdens on their own citizens to make up the difference. Or maybe they expect the gullible citizenry of New York and New Jersey and Pennsylvania or Ohio or the other big tax-paying states to foot the bill as they now must do in order that the state socialism be put into effect and so that President Roosevelt may be able to keep his left wing from attacking him at a time when he has almost been completely abandoned by the right wing and stands in grave danger of losing the truly controlling middle class which swings elections.

Mr. Lilienthal's offer to buy the Commonwealth and Southern and other properties in the TVA area would never have been made public without presidential approval. It was an inevitable step because a drifting policy was getting nobody anywhere. In a frantic attempt to convince investors that the government isn't going to go beyond the operating costs or interest charges it is offering to buy the private utilities only in the Tennessee valley section and to encourage municipalities there to buy the distribution systems. But, when all that is done, the investors will not be reassured, because they know Mr. Roosevelt has simply put aside until a more propitious moment the building of seven TVA's throughout the country from coast to coast.

National Policy
Investors and lenders of savings will be reassured only when the congress of the United States definitely and decisively answers this question: Is America to have a national policy of public ownership and state socialism, or private ownership and private initiative, subsequence Valley authority and the cities to whom the power is to be sold.

Widow Succeeds Husband As Potter Postmaster
Washington—Owing to the death of Arthur Harms, postmaster at Potter, the post office department has sent a bond to be executed by his widow, Mrs. Lulu Harms, with a view to her appointment as acting postmaster there. Yearly salary of the office is about $740, and the civil service commission will hold an examination to establish a register in Potter, at a date to be announced later.

Order Record of Expenditures for Report to State

Tax Commission Threatens Penalties if Order Is Defied

Madison — Corporations and persons earning more than $10,000 a year will be required to keep a record of monies they pay out, under orders which have been issued by the public service, tax and banking commissions.

The orders were issued, Special Counsel William H. Spohn said, following state investigation of the H. M. Byllesby company, Chicago utility holding firm.

The tax commission announced it will impose penalties for failure to comply with its order and that the instructions will be effective on all income reported in 1938.

At Spohn's request, the banking commission, which now has charge of the state securities division, recently ordered accountants to make an examination of Byllesby books in connection with an item of $123,000 which the Chicago Holding company was said to have spent for salary and expenses in the purchase of the Wisconsin Valley Electric Co.

Spohn said the work of state accountants disclosed that there were "possibilities of disbursements for improper purposes where expenditures were made in the discretion of any officer."

"This is especially true where only records of the office show checks to officers who proceed to a bank and make payments through bank drafts or other bank documents," Spohn added.

Aeronautics Group to Meet at Clintonville

Clintonville — James B. King, prominent Milwaukee automobile dealer and president of the Milwaukee Chapter of the National Aeronautical Association, will be the principal speaker at the March meeting of Gateway Chapter N. A. A. at 7:30 Tuesday evening, at the Clintonville city hall. Mr. King will discuss the comparative strengths of the public service, tax and banking commissions.

S. J. Tilleson, captain of the Clintonville National Guard unit, will discuss the comparative air strengths of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Russia.

Raymonde Hyde, Jr., will exhibit some of his model planes and will discuss his visit to the Good-year airship dock at Akron, Ohio.

President Lloyd Baur will present a summary of the new Wisconsin aeronautical law and will explain its advantages. At Milwaukee last week Baur took part in a discussion of the new law at a meeting of the Milwaukee Chapter N. A. A. President Baur will also appoint chairman of the chapter's standing committee at Tuesday's meeting.

State Senator Herman J. Severson of Iowa was the guest speaker at a meeting of St. Martin Lutheran Men's club Thursday evening at the school auditorium. His subject was "Our Government." The program also included motion pictures of the logging industry; harmonica selections by Harland Kirchner; and vocal numbers by a high school trio composed of Ralph Hyde, Cyril Downham and Warren Snider. About 85 were present for the meeting, which opened with a brief business session.

Mark Site of Frontier Church Erected in 1832

The site of the first Methodist church between Lake Michigan and the Pacific ocean and north of a point 50 miles south of Chicago was marked at a ceremony at Kimberly Saturday afternoon at which members of the Outagamie Pioneer and Historical society and prominent Methodists of this vicinity were present.

The site of the church, built in 1832, is on the athletic field of the Kimberly Clark mill at Kimberly. It was discovered by William L. Wolf, Appleton, while he was studying early government surveys of this region in a search for more data on the old Grignon home at Kaukauna.

The Wisconsin Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church revived its Historical society a few years ago and asked Miss Elizabeth Wilson, Appleton, to write the history of the church from 1832 to 1850. A search was started then to determine the exact location of the first church, but it was unsuccessful. Wolf's discovery is considered an important contribution to the church history.

In 1820 the United States government sent a commissioner to the Fox river valley to learn whether sites could be found for several tribes of Christian Indians in New York state to settle. The series of Indian migrations from the east occurred principally from 1822 to 1834. First to arrive were the Oneida Indians with their missionary, Eleazar Williams, a St. Regis with some white blood, who settled on the west bank of the river as what is now known as Little Rapids.

The Stockbridges settled at South Kaukauna and Brothertown between Wrightsford and De Pere. In 1830, records show, a second group of Oneidas settled near the river at what is now Kimberly. Two years later, when the Rev. John Clark was sent out from New York, the chief, Anthony John, called the tribe together and selected a site for a combined church and school. This was completed in two months. The Rev. Mr. Clark formed a Methodist society of 25 members and on Sunday, Sept. 16, 1832, dedicated the church, 24 by 30 feet in dimensions.

The following day a school with 39 children as pupils was opened

Transient May Avoid Bath but Bows To Necessity of Frequent Shaves

BY L. J. DERUS

Knights of the road may shy away from baths and be content to wear dirty clothes but a razor, either straight-edge or safety, is invariably a part of his light "traveling" equipment, according to John Lappen, Outagamie county sheriff, who is host nightly to 15 to 40 transients at the county jail.

If it is a straight-edge razor, the transient usually has it suspended from a string around his neck or if it is a safety razor, it is kept in a small bag also hung at the neck.

The nightly influx of transients at the county jail begins early in November each year when the nights become chilly. However, quarters this last winter did not become crowded until the turn of the new year. A sharp increase from five to fifteen transients to thirty to forty-five was noted on the "register" which is kept at the jail. A small drop in the number has been noticed during the current month.

Must Take Bath

A number of transients keep out of Appleton and find sleeping quarters elsewhere because of the rule at the county jail here that they must take a bath. However, others travel a number of miles to enjoy hot water furnished at the jail, Lappen said.

The transients are not put in with the usual prisoners at the jail, but are housed on the second floor. There are 18 bunks and when the number of "house guests" exceeds that number they must be content to sleep on a newspaper mattress placed on the concrete floor. The transients bring their own newspapers.

Shown on the register are plain names such as Joseph Jones, Henry Minter and other similar ones. These usually are taken up for the sake of convenience. The transients are fairly well acquainted with one another and if one were asked whether he knew of Joseph Jones or Henry Minter, he wouldn't know. However, if asked whether he knew Mickey Slim, Moon Face, Waukegan Willie, Mosinee Blackie, Fingers or Sausage Dutch, there would be quick reply in the affirmative with the information that they had been seen a short time back at Antigo, Milwaukee, Green Bay or some other city. Right names of the "regulars" on the road have long been forgotten for "monikers" that serve to bring out the peculiarities of the individual.

COUNTY JAIL IS TRANSIENT'S HOTEL

This washing business is work but it is something that has to be done at least once in a while. And so the transient shown in the upper picture takes advantage of the facilities during his overnight stay at the county jail to get the coal soot out of his shirt. The collar of the shirt was neatly pressed a short time later by the transient by holding the ends in his hands and deftly snapping the collar tight. In the lower picture two Weary Willies top off their modest meal of bologna with a couple cups of water. (Post-Crescent Photos)

County Farmers Repay FSA Loans Before Due Dates

Receipts on $91,000 in Waupaca District Exceed $27,000

Payments on loans from the Farm Security administration in Waupaca county area which includes Outagamie and Winnebago counties well exceed interest and maturities on principal, according to Clayton C. Case, rural rehabilitation supervisor.

Up to Feb. 15, loans in the three counties amounted to $91,095 and repayments to that date totaled $27,321, while maturities on principal were $14,092, indicating that payments are in excess of the amount due. With the loans made for a maximum of five years, many farmers met their repayments before due, Case said.

"Rural rehabilitation loans made since 1935 have materially aided a considerable number of farmers in reorganizing and reestablishing their farm business, as well as aiding young farmers who were starting farming," Case said. "The primary purpose of the rural rehabilitation division of the FSA is to help low income farm families, some of which may be on or near relief, as well as those who are unable to borrow from production credit associations, because of limited security, and who will, with the aid of a rehabilitation loan, graduate to the higher income group."

"These loans are available to honest, industrious, capable farm families for the purchase of livestock, machinery, and other goods, as well as for the refinancing of chattel mortgages in some cases. Applicants must own or be able to rent a farm which has satisfactory soil and buildings and with sufficient acreage to adequately support the set-up contemplated. The farmer also agrees to cooperate in the formation of a balanced farm plan, as well as in the maintenance of accurate farm records. As security for such loans the farmer gives a first chattel lien on his livestock, machinery, etc. and is required to carry ample insurance on his property."

"Repayments in most cases in this area are made on a monthly basis from assignment of a portion of the income from the sale of dairy products, and may, if necessary, be spread over a 5-year period. Interest rates are 5 per cent per year."

Three New Fever Cases Reported in Appleton

Three new cases of scarlet fever were reported in Appleton last week, making a total of seven cases in the city, according to Claude N. Greisch, deputy health officer. Five homes are quarantined for scarlet fever. Five cases of measles also were reported making six in the city. There is also one case of chicken pox in Appleton.

What's New at the Library

"The Proud Heart" by Pearl Buck which is a recent addition to the shelves at Appleton Public library, is the story of a sculptress. Born in a small college town, she plays the piano, paints, washes dishes, cooks and cleans house better than any of her friends. Married to a farmer's son, she has two children, and then begins to do clay modeling. She wins an important prize on the same day that her husband dies of typhoid, and later goes to Paris to study art. There she falls in love and marries a millionaire sculptor, but eventually decides that her art is more important than even her husband and she leaves him to devote herself entirely to her carving.

To anyone who has traveled in New England and visited some of the historic houses and buildings there, "Open House in New England" by Samuel Chamberlain will be like meeting old friends after a long absence. Photographs of the outstanding houses are shown, both interior and exterior views, among them the homes of Longfellow, Whittier, Emerson, Bryant, Thoreau and Hawthorne, the Alcotts, birthplaces of the painters, James McNeill Whistler and Gilbert Stuart, as well as others. The story of New England is told by its old houses which were tied up with the life and drama of Colonial days. Still gracing the country-side, they are intimate reminders of the early history of our country and furnish a fascinating chapter in architectural history. Many of them have been rescued and restored and their doors thrown open to the public.

On order but not yet received at the library are the two selections of the Book-of-the-Month club, "R. F. D." by Charles Allen Smart and "Cut of Africa" by Isak Dinesen. The latter is the story of the author's life on her African plantation, with its earthquakes, plagues, big game safaris and dealings with natives. "R. F. D." is an attempt to analyze and capture the call of the land and the feelings and thoughts of rural life, dealing with farmers, farming and the rewards of farm life.

Hervey Allen's first novel since "Anthony Adverse" has been published and a copy has been ordered by the public library. "Action at Aquila" which ran serially in the Cosmopolitan is a story of Civil war times in Virginia and shows the pugnacity of the war, shot through with the lives, deaths, loves, thoughts and tragedies of its people. Publishers catalogs call it "the biggest book of the month."

The Literary Guild selection for March, "Danger is my Business" by Captain John Craig is an interesting and exciting book written by an undersea adventurer. This book has been ordered by the library but is not yet available.

The approach of spring and the planting season brings on a rush of seed catalogs and similar materials in the mails which in turn inspires the most urban citizens to dig around in the earth and attempt to nurse a few sprigs of green into some semblance of plant life. In keeping with this mood is a new volume entitled "Pioneering with Fruits and Berries" by George D. Aiken which not only contains information about the planting of trees and plants, what to do and how and when to do it, but is full of photographs and diagrams which make the material very understandable.

Two more new books which are on order at the library are "Mosquito Coast" by P. Keenagh and "Crime Control by the National Government" by A. C. Meekpaugh.

THE MAKING OF A CONSTITUTION

The motto of Rumania should be: the King giveth and the King taketh away.

The King recently became a little weary of the Rumanian constitution so he scrapped it. Then he put on a white uniform, went into his study, got a full bottle of 20 year old cognac and began writing the new constitution.

The King is a stickler for democratic forms. He believes in the rule of the people. But they must rule the way he tells them to rule.

So he announced that a new constitution would be submitted to the people for their approval. How many of them read it, or how many of them can read it, beside the point. The criers for the king rang the bells around every village square and the people congregated while the gendarmes looked on. There was no ballot. Paper comes high in Rumania.

But the people were asked to say whether they favored the new constitution. It would be a mighty mean Rumanian who would belittle his liege lord's work by turning it down. And Rumanians are not that mean.

The boys who went around and took the vote on each village square report the Rumanian people as pure minded toward their King and his new constitution, as a certain American soap that declares its percentage of purity. So the vote upholding the King and his new constitution was as close to 100 per cent as they dared make it.

The Rumanian method of getting "the will of the people" is precisely the same as that used by the Florentine Republic some 500 years ago, and of which historians are pretty rough in their criticism. The organization of a meeting of this kind where the Army, the police and all the organizers are interested in making the vote a huge success offers many opportunities for clever work, but few for getting the actual and honest opinion of the masses.

At any rate Rumania and its 19,000,000 people have definitely followed in the big footsteps made by Rome and Berlin.

FEBRUARY STATEMEN

Before February ended, we should have mentioned Jefferson Davis, the first and only President of the Confederate States of America who was inaugurated in that month.

In doing so, we would naturally have pointed to a period about twenty years after the conclusion of the Civil war to hear Mr. Davis say:

"The past is dead, let it bury its dead, its hopes and its aspirations; before you lies the future—a future full of golden promise, a future of expanding national glory, before which all the world will stand amazed. Let me beseech you to lay aside all rancor, all bitter sectional feelings, and to take your places in the ranks of those who will bring about a consummation devoutly to be wished—a reunited country."

Neither could anyone who wished to be fair to Mr. Davis nail him to the mast as a devotee of slavery because he was not. In the sight of the battle clouds that were forming, Mr. Davis said:

"I am a patient abolitionist. The practical emancipation of the slaves will not be the labor of one generation. The slave must be made fit for his freedom by education and discipline and thus made unfit for slavery."

But the black point in the Davis psychology was that the theory held by him and his associates could only be forced by disruption of the Union. In this respect his mistake deserves to be called colossal.

NOT WORKING FOR STALIN

Brother Stalin, in his recent pep letter to Russian Communists, urged them "to organize political aid by the working class of bourgeois countries for the working class of our country in case of military attack on our country."

This was a surprising appeal, because the Russian government and the Russian Communist party were supposed to have quit their propaganda in democratic countries.

If there was any expectation in Stalin's mind that the "working class" in America would set cheerfully to work for him, he must be disillusioned by the immediate refusal of American labor unions. The Federation of Labor, through Matthew Woll, its vice president, promptly replies that our workers are no more inclined to help Communism than Fascism, and "will not permit themselves to become embroiled in war to help save Stalin's dictatorship." He adds: "Let Stalin introduce democracy in his own country before talking of fighting for it elsewhere." The CIO has likewise declared that it will have nothing to do with Communism. Here is something that Stalin and his red brethren will never be able to understand.

COLLECTING SNAILS

Reading a newspaper headline which says "Ohioan Bags Rare Snail in Mexico," perhaps a fellow should get excited. But it depends on temperament and background. There has been so much going to the ends of the earth on wild goose chases of one sort and another that some of us no longer get much kick out of a panda from Tibet or a Teddy Bear from Australia or a carload of dinosaur bones from Montana.

But about this snail. It hibernates in the trees around a village on the Pacific ocean near Acapulco, Mexico, and Dr. B. R. Bales of Circleville, Ohio, has gathered 5,000 specimens of it and some other varieties. He will take them home with him in his car, after boiling them out, and his wife will stand for it. Professors' wives stand for a good deal.

It is all in the cause of science, of course. Snails, in case you don't happen to know, are malacology. The American Malacological Union will be excited about those snails. And if someone asks why the excitement, they may smile tolerantly and reply: "Well, what do you collect?" We're the most collecting people on earth.

GERMAN ERAS

The National Socialist Teachers League of Germany has thought of a few things Hitler neglects. The organization recommends that "B.C." and "A.D.", indicating the pre-Christian and Christian eras, be abolished. It would adopt terms meaning "before or after the time of counting." The league also would divide German history into "primo-Germanic and pan-Germanic" eras.

So history repeats. The National Convention of the First French Republic threw out the established calendar of that time and set up one of its own, going even farther than the present German proposal. The months were divided into decades, the days into ten hours of 100 minutes each. The months were given new names based on botany, farming and seasons. In 1806 Napoleon "set aside the absurd scheme" and restored the Gregorian calendar.

Hitler expects Nazism to last 1,000 years, but it seems a safe guess that its revised chronology will not last so long.

TROUBLE IN TOKYO

Oriental Fascism is not doing so well, either. The Japanese nation was against the autocrat group running the government before the war in China began. For a while the public rallied patriotically to support the war; but as the campaign drags, and new levies of men and money are needed, and the dead and wounded come back in a steady stream, government support wanes again.

There have been dangerous disturbances lately in Tokyo and even in the halls of parliament. Instead of the greater power demanded by the militarists, the parliament wants to give them less. The critics complain that a "mobilization act" submitted for approval is "a bureaucratic invention devised by officials in contact with the army, who are creating the framework of a dictatorial system." It would lead, they say, to "complete regimentation."

Takao Saito, brilliant leader of the majority party, recently denounced the measure amid the cheers of his supporters. Business interests, too, formerly approving of the conduct of the war, are said to be swinging to his side.

Time is fighting for China, and perhaps also for the best interest of Japan. If China can keep on fighting a few months more, she may win a tolerable peace and democracy may win in Japan.

Opinions Of Others

VAN DEVANTER'S METHOD

The part of the legal profession which is committed to swifter, surer justice will rejoice at the example just set by Justice Van Devanter, hearing the so-called Reno swindle cases in a New York district court. The trial was the fruit of seven years of investigation by federal agencies; the prosecution was the most complicated in recent government experience; the accumulation of documents and exhibits ran into the hundreds of thousands. In the usual course the trial would have consumed a month and a half. It was done in 20 days.

By holding strictly to issues, and cracking down on the false alarms and footless excursions of counsel, the elderly justice set a standard, new in these times, for expeditious arrival at truth. Lines of questioning intended to befuddle a witness were quickly interrupted by the court, who took over the questioning, cleared up the point in a query or two and ordered counsel to proceed. More than one of the latter found himself an unwilling accessory in this process of making quick access to the facts. They were in truth, as well as theory, officers of the court.

Unquestionably much more could be done in the state and local courts through the country to the same purpose, in keeping the essentials from the extraneous, and particularly in taking over the examination of witnesses. These are the usual ways of the British court, and while the icyway allowed American courts is considerable, few of them actively participate in the issues before them to the degree common in British procedure. There is the ever-haunting fear of a reversal, because of a chance word to the prejudice of a party in suit—a well-founded fear, perhaps, since our courts of appeal are, generally speaking, inclined to give larger weight than the British to objections which do not set up a substantial injustice.

The spirit of expedition and impatience with the immaterial should run through the judicial structure. There is progress in that direction—constant, but discouragingly slow. More effective than the thankless efforts of idealists in the profession is the example of so conspicuous a jurist as Van Devanter. The whole movement toward quicker, more sensible justice is energized by his recent performance.—The Detroit News.

IT IS reliably reported that "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" has (or would you say "have") arrived in Chicago . . . this makes me mad . . . pictures are never supposed to open in Chicago until they have made the rounds of all other cities and the movie people are breaking precedent to book a picture into that village before showing it in places like Oshkosh, Appleton and Wausau . . . you remember how "In Old Chicago" had its premiere elsewhere despite the remarkable potential publicity value of opening it in Chicago . . . this showed firm adherence to motion picture tradition . . . but the movie people are exhibiting definite signs of weakening when they let something like this Snow White incident happen . . . maybe it was a mistake . . . maybe the picture was intended for Waukegan or Elgin and was routed into Chicago by error . . .

Just a year ago today, strikes were being called in the Chrysler plants. It was also at that time Mr. Lewis was going to the White House to cheer FDR on in his attempt to alter the Supreme Court.

Just where does Mr. Lewis stand right now in comparison to then? And Mr. R.? And were any justices added to the Supreme Court?

Reminding me that Mr. R. had promised not to enter into state campaigns. His letter about Senator Duffy was, I presume, just a little personal gesture.

It's nice to see a guy get ahead. In this connection, praise for Ben Gage who once played basketball at Lawrence college, who got to singing with Anson Weeks, who did other radio work in Chicago, who went to Hollywood, and who took over as an announcer out there. He was describing flood conditions from a plane above Los Angeles a few days ago, I see by the paper.

It would be a guy with 1937 license plates who had the car pinned in so I couldn't move it the other day.

Somebody came up with the right answer the other day — there's no point in trying to show the president where he might (being a human, being, after all) made mistakes. He doesn't make mistakes. Ask him. He said he'd be the first to admit it.

No, the only way out is to show the people that the president is human and makes mistakes. They do the voting, after all.

The time to start is when the fall elections roll around. The thing to do is to choose senators and congressmen who, whether Democrat, Republican or Progressive, take orders from the people back home, operate in the interest of these people and refuse to be bossed by Jimmy Roosevelt's father.

And getting new bridges, dams, airports and stuff out of federal funds does not necessarily mean doing right by the folks at home. In fact, a stingy congress could do the people a lot of real favors along about now.

A Verse for Today

SINCE MOTHER BROKE THE SCALES

Our house is very tranquil now . . . I know Content lives here. It has not always been so. In the Springtime of the year. But Happiness came dancing in— That shy, elusive elf. Since Mother broke the bathroom scales, And cannot weigh herself!

The time for buying clothes has come, But Mother, undismayed, Goes rummaging about the stores! She picks a giddy shade, And we forget her figure means A vast outlay of pelf. Since Mother broke the bathroom scales, And cannot weigh herself!

She is in such a cheerful mood, We cannot say a thing! She always wears clothes dark and trim In every other Spring! I think I'll hide the mirrors all Away upon a shelf, Since Mother broke the bathroom scales, And cannot weigh herself! (Copyright, 1938)

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

Monday, March 5, 1928

Charles A. Lindbergh, his public appearances over, was making an effort to keep out of the public eye and retire to private life. Plans were already ready for beginning construction of a subway on E. Wisconsin avenue under the Chicago and Northwestern railway and the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. interurban tracks. It was hoped that work would start in the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Currie celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary the previous evening. Lawrence college closed its basketball season with a 29 to 21 victory over Beloit the previous Saturday. Rummel and Schneller starred for the Viking club.

Kimberly Clark Co. basketball championship by defeating Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Niagara, Wis., quintets Friday and Saturday nights. Mayors and fire department chiefs were to meet in Little Chute that evening to discuss a cooperative plan for fire fighting in the Fox river valley.

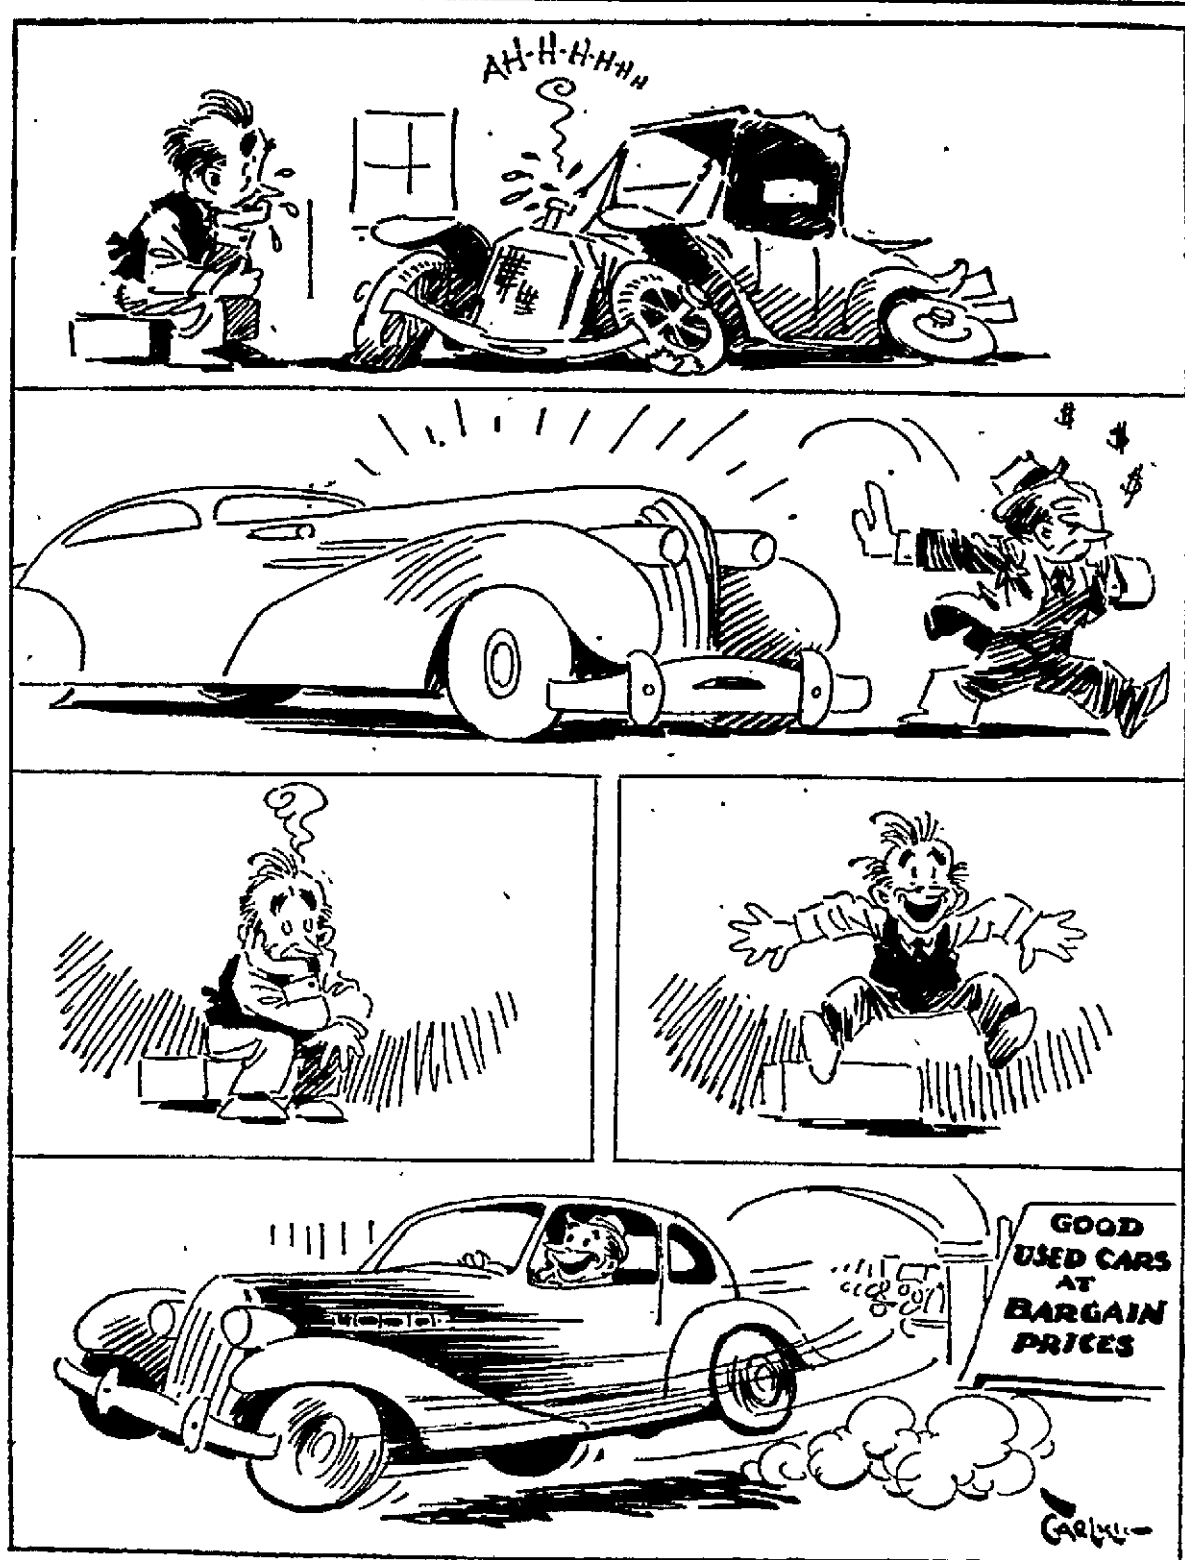

23 YEARS AGO

Monday, March 10, 1913

Michael Garvey yesterday was appointed chief of the police department by the police and fire commission. He succeeded the late F. W. Hoefler. The entire main channel of the Fox river was dry because a dam had been closed at Neenah to enable workmen to make repairs. The dam had been damaged during the winter. Paper mills were operating with steam power. The Four Wheel Drive Co. at Clintonville Saturday announced it would triple the size of its plant by erecting two new buildings. It was expected that about 125 men would be employed in the factory when the new buildings were finished.

The Holy Name Society of St. Joseph church was organized Sunday with Henry Schmitz as its first president.

BARGAIN WEEK IN THE USED CAR FIELD

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

THAT'S NOT COLICIS

Those physicians who contend that "constipation is of nervous origin" and cite in support of their contention the fact that in many individuals unpleasant emotions unquestionably retard or stop digestive processes, too often ignore the equally significant fact that in the normal individual the digestive processes are resumed soon after the unpleasant emotion passes and no lasting harm follows the momentary upset. In other and simpler words a snarl or a growl or a flush of envy or jealousy scarcely leaves a scar if a chuckle or a pleasant greeting or gesture of true love or friendship immediately follows.

Prof. Cannon's cats (all Class A neurotics should read Cannon's classic "Bodily Changes, in Pain, Hunger, Fear and Rage, Appleton, 1915) illustrate this. For X-ray observation of digestive processes the cats had to be restrained in a holder. While so restrained the males, particularly the young males, were restive and excited and their gastric peristaltic waves were absent. But the females, especially the older females, submitted calmly, and in them the peristaltic waves continued normally. One female with kittens, however, turned from her state of quiet contentment to one of apparent restless anxiety. In her stomach movements stopped, the stomach wall became relaxed and flabby, and only after she had been petted and began to purr did the peristaltic waves start again in their normal way.

In a vigorous young male cat Dr. Cannon watched the stomach for over an hour (by means of X-rays) and during that time not the slightest beginning of peristaltic activity appeared. Yet the only visible indication of excitement in the animal was a continued quick twitching of the tail to and fro.

In view of the physiological resistance or capacity to "take it" that the normal human being has, I tend to it is not quite logical or fair to say that "constipation is commonly of nervous origin." If that were true since every one necessarily has unpleasant emotions, every one should suffer from constipation. We know that at least a large minority of people who have their share of unpleasant emotions nevertheless enjoy good digestion and regular bowel defecation so that they never resort to any alleged "aid" to digestion or bowel function.

On the other hand, in many individuals, due to faulty nutrition, there is excessive irritability of the nerves (let us call them the unconscious nerves) controlling the digestive processes—the vagus and sympathetic nerves, the nerve plexuses in the walls of the small and large intestines. In consequence of this irritability due to nutritional deficiency, excessive reactions occur, the co-ordination is upset or deranged by emotional or other stimuli which would not seriously disturb the healthy, vigorous alimentary tract. These individuals lack the necessary physiological resilience or tone which enables the normal individual to recover quickly by the natural or normal balance after such disturbance. They are inclined to acquire the obsession that they have "mucous colitis." What they have is not colitis at all, not inflammation of the colon. They have colon derangement, that's all, till later.

If March 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m., and from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m., and from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m. There may be many arguments this day due mostly to arbitrary rules governing personal conduct. Do not allow fixed opinions to cause you to turn a deaf ear to explanations or the advancement of some process of logical reasoning, particularly if you are a parent. It might pay to be ultra conservative in making statements, as well as the assumption of any indebtedness. It might be good judgment not to inject into a business or domestic affairs any new or radical changes, for the chances are they will not be graciously accepted. Combative dispositions require careful watching this day because through ordinary slights serious misunderstandings are likely to occur. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whose nuptial prospects are bright, must be alert that jealousy does not make them appear peevish and unreasonable.

If a woman and March 8 is your birthday, your love for your family and friends might make you seem over-anxious to be of service to them. Do not try to regulate the affairs or lives of other people, if you wish to be popular. You perhaps will find that you can work better and accomplish more by yourself than with a partner, or someone who has to be constantly with you, directing your movements. You ought to be a convincing talker, and have a remarkable amount of selling ability. Money seems destined to come your way, under normal conditions. As an educator, demonstrator, purchasing agent, publicity agent, artist, sales lady or author your achievements are likely to be record breakers. Conditions and indications relating to the matrimonial lives of those born on this date are most favorable.

The child born on March 8 ought to have plenty of self-control, a sweet disposition, tact, and a most sympathetic nature. Logical conclusions regarding this youngster's future are such as to justify its parents' expectation of great things for it.

ents' expectation of great things for it.

If a man and March 8 is your natal day, you may be too quick in making important announcements, or in figuring estimated profits. As a doctor, contractor, engineer, journalist, printer, publisher, or actor time ought to treat you kindly and your bank account well.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York — Occasionally a panhandler shuffles up to the curb a panhandler with a new and refreshing argument. Such a browser stepped smartly up to Bob Ripley and lunched him on the arm.

"Pardon me," he said, "can you let me have 35 cents for a cup of coffee?" "Thirty-five cents? Coffee costs only a nickel."

"Yeah," replied the bum, "but I've got to get my tuxedo pressed."

It is Joe Rines who tells this one on himself. Joe was pretty much in need of sleep and was gratefully pounding his head on the other night when a terrific racket brought him angrily back into this world.

Donning his robe, the band leader rushed next door and gave the unthinking merry-makers a blistering dressing down. "Say," ejaculated one fellow, "aren't you Joe Rines?" "Well, yes I am," replied Rines, somewhat mollified, "what about it?"

"Gosh, I think you're the greatest band leader in New York, I was just playing some of your records. . . . Tell me, when that trumpet goes ta-ta-te-ti-ti, what is that bell-like noise in the background?" Several hours later, when Joe got back to his own room, he wasn't a bit mad.

There's a legend that a fortune has been accumulated in a downtown bank, small sums left there by sailors who were lost at sea or otherwise disappeared. At least, so the story goes, they never came back and all efforts to communicate with theirs have met with failure.

Except for the trifling drawback of being untrue, this is a charming fable and belongs with the rest of Broadway's Mother Goose stories. I have heard also and read in the reports of my colleagues from time to time of gaudied old hags out of witches tales who brew nameless potions in blackened pots under the gloomy arches of Brooklyn Bridge, but I have never been so fortunate as to encounter them. They have been described as toothless and leaning on crooked sticks and mumbling incantations while stirring these mysterious broths. I guess I don't get around enough.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—The state department was simply getting along fine with its request for Congress to add a little to the budget, when up came the case of ambling Joseph E. Davies.

Foreign service employees are allowed 60 days leave each year if nothing interferes to upset their plans—such as war or a peace conference. The political ambassadors and ministers—those appointed outside the career foreign service, averaged 40 days leave last year. The career ministers took an average of 33 days.

"What," asked Representative Bacon of Old Westbury, New York, "is the situation with respect to our Ambassador to Moscow?"

"How is it that our Ambassador to Moscow is on leave so much of the time?"

And thus the case of Ambassador Davies who married heiress Marjorie Post Hutton was detailed to the committee. He went to Moscow Jan. 19, 1937, said officers of the state department appearing before the committee, and during the year was absent from his post 199 days. Regular leave accounted for 43 days time in transit 30 days official business (he toured a number of European capitals) 89 days. On top of that he took 37 days leave without pay.

"Put that in the Record in detailed form," said Representative McMillan of South Carolina, "because if it is important enough for us to have an ambassador in Moscow it is important enough to have him stay at the post."

Salary Matters

"We will take up now the items for salaries for foreign service officers," continued McMillan and the ladies from the department, and at the time of it. They were asking $51.00 for "automatic" salary increases due the foreign service officers in the career service and before it was over some really heart-rending tales had been told. Said George S. Messersmith, veteran assistant secretary of state:

"I have not, since I entered the service 20 years ago, saved a single penny of my salary or my private income, which, as I say, is a very modest one. But I have done that because I have felt that the modest retirement allowance will be sufficient to cover me after I am retired."

"I have felt, however, consistently during that time that I was doing a great injustice to my family."

Good Diplomacy

He went on to say that officers who did a good job abroad had to spend every dime they could legally lay their hands on to save face for the United States by living in the right way. You can't, for instance, entertain the foreign secretary of Dingbat at a dinner served on an oilcloth table in a three-room flat just because George needs the money at Harvard. George will have to do without.

But foreign service officers are not diplomats for nothing. The appropriations committee approved the $51,100 for 1938. That was in the budget. But not in the budget was an item of $30,000 with which to hire 12 additional foreign service officers to help out in some of the foreign stations which are undermanned.

What does an officer do at a post when he gets sick and has no assistant? Mr. Messersmith had an answer for that, too.

"I could tell you some very interesting stories in that connection, Mr. Baker. An officer was telling me the other day—he was stationed in Africa—how he kept receiving telegrams when he was stationed in Africa—how he kept receiving telegrams when he was down with a fever. He dragged himself to the safe in his office. He was the only person there authorized to use the code. That is the sort of thing which happens when we have only one man at a post."

So the committee voted them the $30,000 also.

Open Collection Plate

Brings 20 Per Cent Rise

Popular England—(N)—The Rev. Mr. Kenneth Ashcroft has no use for people who put a half-penny (one cent) in the collection plate when they can afford more. "Such people should be slung out of the church, just as they would be slung out of any society if they refused to pay their 'sub' (subscription)," declared recently.

He adopted a new way of dealing with the situation, however, than the canon who warned his flock he would throw all half-pennies in the collection into the street—and carried out his threat. The Rev. Mr. Ashcroft simply put his congregation on the spot by substituting an open collection plate for the traditional collection bag which conceals the amount being given. And collections went up about 20 per cent, he said.

Cave City, Ky. (N)—There are no sissies in Cave City's newest lodge.

The members call themselves "rattling rattlesnake eaters" and dine on rattlesnake meat with chitlings and corn pone as trimming. This said that they use potent Kentucky dew without a chaser to whet their appetite for these victuals.

Hollywood Journalism Has Ethics All Its Own

BY WESTBROOK FEGLER

Los Angeles — There is a phase of life in Hollywood which is covered by a great, superstitious taboo which is, nevertheless, one of the most interesting peculiarities of a strange community. I refer to the part which journalism plays in the moving picture business and to the ethics of this journalism, which are weird by comparison with the standard rules as old-line newspaper men learned them.

For many years, the actors, more especially the women stars, and the producers and publicity departments have stood in awe of Miss Luella O. Parsons, the moving picture columnist of Mr. Hearst's newspaper. This prestige appears to be diminishing now, with the consolidation and elimination of some of Mr. Hearst's papers and the narrowing of his interests in other fields.

Miss Parsons is an intimate friend of Miss Marion Davies and has often been a guest at the vast Hearst principality of San Simeon, some distance up the coast, and in the days of Mr. Hearst's greatest influence this association created in the minds of the moving picture people a desire to win her favor. That Miss Parsons herself has ever encouraged this belief is not apparent, for she regards herself as a reporter and not as the arbiter of careers which the profession has deemed her to be. That is all in their imagination.

The extent and force of her influence would seem to be vastly exaggerated, for there are dozens of other Hollywood columnists and commentators, and the judgment of a Hearst expert in a New York paper, for example, certainly would not be final with the public there. Miss Parsons also conducts a radio program in which the stars appear as guest artists and served one engagement in a movie drama — common practice among the movie specialists who do not hold with the rather fastidious rule of old-line journalists that a critic should have no profitable interest in the subject of his work.

Yet journalism is what publishers make it, and when Mr. Hearst produces or owns a financial interest in a moving picture, which then receives ecstatic reviews and spreads of art in his own newspapers, an example is set which justifies deviations from the old principles by those who write in his service. A fight writer may ballyhoo a fighter in whom he owns a percentage, and a specialist in any line may openly receive Christmas gifts and birthday presents of value from persons whose professional interests may benefit or suffer from the written comment of the recipient.

Small Trade Paper Has Big Influence

Movie commentators or columnists are stage struts or mike-struck and soon come to regard themselves as actors or radio entertainers, inevitably on terms of professional rivalry with legitimate actors and radio artists on whose work they pass judgment in print. In many cases they have used their newspaper space for coy or blatant advertisement of their own movies or radio programs, or both, apparently without the slightest thought that such conduct might be questionable.

It should be said in extenuation, however, that the most conspicuous and successful violators of the old canons are not primarily newspaper men by training or profession but novelty men doing vaudeville acts on paper.

At present the influence conceded to Miss Parsons appears to have been topped by that which is conceded to the Hollywood Reporter, a small and strictly professional trade paper with a class circulation. This paper carries personal advertise-

Improvement of Road

"What cigarette do the tobacco growers smoke themselves?"

"Camels — by a large majority," say planters who know the kinds of tobacco bought by each popular cigarette

T. N. Williams, well-known grower, of Winchester, Kentucky, says: "A planter knows tobacco. My last crop was the best I ever had and the Camel people bought my best leaf tobacco. There isn't any question where the more expensive tobaccos go. They're in Camel cigarettes."

Top prices, that's what J. B. Jackson, successful planter, got from the Camel buyer last year. "Camel buyers don't buy just any tobacco — they pay more to get the best. That means finer tobaccos are used for Camels. I say quality has got to be grown in tobacco. That's why I smoke Camels."

"I'm a planter," says Vertner Hutton, who has grown tobacco for 25 years. "Camel bought the best grades of my last crop. Paid a high price for my finest grades. I smoke Camels — because I know there isn't any substitute for more expensive tobaccos."

Method of Growing Slow Germinating Seeds

A few flower seeds are slow to germinate, taking from 30 days to a year. This need not frighten the amateur who is willing to give them the correct treatment, which is not difficult and requires merely patience and a little care.

Fill a flat or the shallow pot which florists call a pan, with potting soil, firm the soil and broadcast the seed, covering them four or five times their diameter. Place the receptacle in a shaded location where there is free circulation of air. During the spring, summer and fall water over and cover with leaves. A place under the eaves of the house on the side away from the prevailing wind is good; or a cold frame may be used. Eventually the seeds will sprout and the seedlings will appear. They should be transplanted when they make true leaves and transplanted to pot, nursery row or permanent location.

Experienced gardeners seldom discard a pan or flat in which slow germinating subjects have been sown until at least a year has been given for the seedlings to appear.

Some perennials prefer to be frozen before they germinate. A method by which time may be saved is as follows: Take an ice tray and electric refrigerator and fill it half full of water. Flat the seeds on the water and freeze it in the refrigerator. When frozen, fill up the rest of the tray and freeze. The seeds will then be encased in ice and may be kept there for several days, and planted when thawed out. Good results with this method have been reported on seeds of tall bearded iris, trollius, dianthus, perennial phlox, all cubjects which otherwise prefer to be sown in the fall and left outdoors over winter before they will grow.

When moss appears on the surface of the soil in pots and pans, sprinkle fresh earth over it. Ability to grow slow germinating subjects set a gardener off as one of an advanced few; yet it is no more difficult than with quick germinating varieties. It opens the way to acquire at a minimum cost plants of a large number of perennials not commonly grown, and of participating in the fascinating sport of growing seedling irises and peonies. Horticultural varieties of irises, peonies, and perennial phlox are not reproduced from seed, but by dividing the roots of named varieties. Seeds of these plants grown from seed do not reproduce the parents exactly, but are, in effect, new varieties with the chance that one may be better than any other known of its color; and thus bring fame and profit to its grower. With both peonies and irises it takes three years to grow a flowering plant from seed; but thousands of amateurs find it a fascinating pastime.

Many lilies may also be grown from seed, under treatment similar to that advised for slow germinating subjects. They may be sown at any time, and the period of germination will vary greatly. Gladioli seeds also may be given the same treatment, but it is usually sufficient to sow them in the spring. Instead of a flat or pan a seed bed may be used for them, provided it can be watered.

According to the decision of the fairs board, 12 fairs in the first class will be limited to $3,000 each in state aid. They include Manitowish, DePere, Superior, Marshfield, Wausau, Monroe, Chippewa Falls, Beaver Dam, Oshkosh, La-Crosse, Madison, and Elkhorn. ## Three Candidates In Mayoralty Race At Clintonville

Brunner, Kratzke and Washburn are Running for Office

Clintonville — A three-cornered race for the office of mayor of this city will provide excitement here in the coming spring election. Mayor A. A. Washburn has announced that he will be a candidate for reelection, and nomination papers have been circulated for Herman Kratzke and Attorney S. W. Brunner. Mr. Kratzke has served for 13 years at various times as mayor of Clintonville and was defeated by a small margin in a three-cornered race two years ago. Mr. Brunner has considerable experience in city affairs, having served as city attorney for two years while Arthur Campbell was mayor.

City Treasurer Robert Fischer and City Clerk S. J. Tillison will be candidates for reelection and have no opposition. Up to Saturday afternoon there was opposition in only two wards for aldermen. Lloyd Pinkowsky will run against Fred Gansen, incumbent in the Second ward; and Arthur Schnorr will oppose Fred Tanner, who seeks reelection in the Third ward. Other councilmen whose terms expire this spring are Herman Larson, First ward; George Berndt, Fourth ward; and Albert Winter, Fifth ward, all of whom will be candidates for reelection.

Supervisors whose terms expire this year are E. J. Perkins, Arthur Steenbeck, Ferdinand Goerling, Charles Binder and Henry Weller. In the Fifth ward, George Lang, former member of the county board, will oppose Weller, who went into office after a close race with Lang two years ago.

Mrs. Henry Borchardt returned home Friday evening from Madison, where she had spent three weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Coster.

Miss Viola Behling has returned from a week's visit at Milwaukee. A son was born Friday, Mar. 4, to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Below of Manitowish. Mr. Below is a former Clintonville resident and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Below. His wife is the former Helen Barnes of Menasha.

Three tables of bridge furnished entertainment and a luncheon followed the games. Those receiving prizes were Mrs. James Sorenson, Mrs. Spiegel, Mrs. William H. Shultz and Mrs. Stieg.

Eugene Thies, a student at North Central college, Naperville, Ill., visited from Friday to Monday with bidding up the prices of old established properties or for government financing.

The net conclusion we are driven to is that if for broad social and national reasons, we wish to continue to tax the rich out of existence, then we cannot afford also to prevent corporations from holding back profits and using them to finance industrial expansion. We can probably afford the present income tax structure or the undistributed profits tax, but we cannot afford both if we wish to see capital invested in private enterprise in order to create new jobs and services.

If both kinds of taxation are to be retained, we shall be driven inevitably toward some kind of government financing of private enterprise supplemented by much greater investment in public works than we have yet considered. For if we cut off the private supply of adventurous capital by income and undistributed profits taxes, then unless we are to have stagnation and growing unemployment, we shall have to provide a public supply of adventurous capital.

And so, unless the tax laws can be amended so as to encourage adventurous private investment, we shall come inescapably to a time when the government itself will be the principal banker and the principal entrepreneur.

Expert Says Critics Are Bit Hasty

ANGER BY ELY CULBERTSON
The storm that has descended upon my poor defenseless head, all because of a certain hand published in my column under date of Feb. 4, confirms what I have suspected for a long time, namely, that many readers follow these daily hares from a "double dummy" point of view. I have received so many letters chiding my praise of a defender in the hand mentioned that, partly in self-defense and partly in a desire to throw more light on the situation, I shall repeat the hand today with a fuller explanation of why I enthusiastically approved a defender's play and why I did not criticize the victim (declarer). This was the hand:
South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 heart Pass 2 diamonds Pass
2 hearts Pass 4 hearts Pass
4 no trump Pass 5 clubs Pass
6 hearts Pass 6 spades Pass

I now repeat a description of the play. West led a low spade. East played the king and South the ace. South cashed the ace and king of hearts. He then led a club to the ace, finessed on the return, and cashed the club king. South then led the spade jack. West won and, after much thought, returned his thirteenth club. Now we come to the gist of the situation:
Declarer ruffed with the heart queen, discarding a diamond from his own hand, then attempted to enter his hand with the diamond ace to draw East's last trump. Unfortunately, East had discarded his singleton diamond on the thirteenth club and now could ruff the diamond lead. From Maine and California, not to mention in-between points, poured in the reproaches. "It was all very well," the average letter said, "to praise West's defense, but why did you not point out that declarer had played like a nitwit, that all he had to do on the thirteenth club was discard a diamond from dummy, ruff in his own hand, lead to the heart queen, drawing East's last trump, lead a diamond back to his ace, dropping the jack, and then finessing against the queen?" My answer to these critics is a mild "hat-tut," but really I could say something much stronger! This is by all odds the most remarkable criticism I ever have encountered! May I point out that declarer's entire play was based on the fact that, not being gifted with an abnormally long neck, or second sight, he did not know that he could play the diamond suit without losing a trick? Had he known that East's diamond jack was blank he hardly would have gone through an elaborate semi-stripping process. All he would have had to do was take out the trumps, lead the diamond ace, and push the eight spot through West. In this way he could have made all thirteen tricks without even taking the club finesse!
I am afraid that my critics were a bit hasty. The declarer's play was excellent! From his point of view it appeared vital to get rid of a diamond from his own hand. When the thirteenth club was led declarer would have been badly to have refused to ruff in dummy while discarding his losing diamond! How could he tell that East could get rid of his only diamond and ruff the next lead?

The safest way to uncover beds and borders which have been protected by straw, hay or similar material throughout the winter, is to take it off a little at a time as the heavy frost has left the ground. Frequently one or two nights of freezing weather come late in the Spring and a little protection will be helpful then. It always pays to have a small amount of hay or straw ready to throw over plants which are just starting through the ground in a period of cold weather is threatened. Naturally, young shoots just starting into growth are tender.
When stuffing a duck, add a chopped apple to the bread dressing. The apple removes the strong taste that some people object to.

Good Discipline Can Ease Teacher's Burden

BY ANGELO PATRI
Nobody knows how tired a teacher can be at dismissal time unless he has been that teacher. The strains under which a teacher works are inhuman, and the sad part of it is that most of them need not at all. They are the result of impossible demands made upon children by teachers or supervisors, or both, by unreasonable demands made upon teachers and children by conventional discipline held sacred by tradition and traditional school boards.
Children above the third year in school are not easy to discipline in drilled order. Take the school where formal discipline is demanded by the Authority. No child must lose step in the march. No head must move out of line as much as a hair's breadth. No sneeze, no cough—above all, no smile, no smothered giggle (always the result of severe nervous strain) must mar the stiff and silent parade.
Assembly means a congregation of hundreds of children, each squad under the supervision of the teacher. If one of her charges violates a single item of the rigid code the teacher is called to account, her control of class, her discipline, a major matter in the rating of a teacher, is questioned. "Have you no control of your class? The boy third from the rear strength of the nerve fibres in her body. Her face is set; her teeth are clenched; her eyes are fixed; her body stiff and stony lest one single little chap relax in answer to the slightest show of humanity in her expression.
Imagine the strain on children—fountains of energy, created to move, to see, hear, feel and act—under such a routine. Extend it to the classrooms where no child may turn his head, or speak without just cause and permission, break the stillness by so much as a yawn, and you will get a good idea of the cause of nervous breakdowns in teachers and temper tantrums in naughty, nervous illnesses in school children.
Fraise be, there are some school boards, some supervisors, many teachers, who know that rigid discipline, maintained too long, kills the spirit. They know that order has its place in a school, but they know that the way to get it when it is needed, is to train the children to cooperative, intelligent behavior. Iron discipline brings about the precise opposite of what it follows. It breeds rebelliousness, helplessness, stupid members of society. Freedom within the law is the ideal, always. If the teachers look tired investigate the discipline of the school.
Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Show Your Ears to Be In Fashion

Climbing curls are doing a little face lifting in more ways than one. In themselves they are doing a fine job of lifting one's looks, generally as well as one's spirit. Economists notwithstanding there's an exultant feeling of "everything's going up." Not only that, but the climbing curls are calling shell-like ears to come out and show their pretty pinkness.
I think it's fine for the feminine morale. We are suddenly aware that the face has another feature. Now it won't be long before ears take years from one's appearance. And it won't be long before we see small, soft, pink and pretty ears doing a peek-a-boo. By the way, if they are anything but small they ought to be kept partially hidden. However, since Fashion is calling upon us to show them, we women will work up to "show off" standards.

A Facial for Your Ears!
The complex brush and soap with warm water will be whisked over the ears while it is whisked over face and neck. Then will come a thorough rinsing. Cleansing cream will be carried up from the neck, behind the ears and over to the front of the ear. Then it will be gently removed with tissues. A skin tonic sponging will follow. And a wee bit of soothing cream or nourishing cream will be massaged over the front of the ear with thumb and forefinger upward from lobe to top of ear; then behind the ear with a firm, rotary, upward motion. A little of this cream may be left on overnight, or on an hour or so during the day, but in order to avoid any greasy feeling, be sure to remove with tissues, sponge again with skin tonic and then powder up over the back of the ears. Rouge the top and the lobes of the ears ever so lightly to carry out the idea of that fragile, flushed look. Then slip on a pair of ear clips and be a gay, glamorous girl. Ear clips, by the way, are being featured these days!

Great Britain's Chinese City

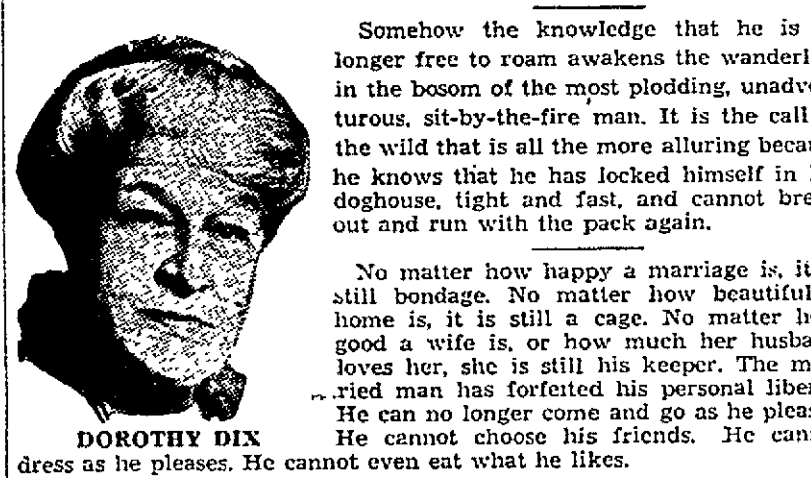

Hongkong: This large city is on an island just off the coast of southern China. In one way it is a British city, in another way it is a Chinese city. We may say, "Great Britain owns it, but the Chinese live in it."

Hongkong wood carvers.
There are, to be sure, about 8,000 persons of British birth or descent here, but more than 95 per cent of the inhabitants are Chinese.
Not quite a century ago, Great Britain obtained the island. At that time it was the home of only 5,000 people.
A city of about 400,000 people has grown up on the island. Its official name, "Victoria," is not used very often. Almost everyone calls the city, as well as the island, "Hongkong." The name also has the spelling "Hong Kong."
"Hongkong" means "Sweet-smelling harbor." The name does not fit well right now, but long ago there were no doubt great stretches of wild flowers on the island. China has the old nickname of "Flower Kingdom."
Walking along the streets of Hongkong, I had to watch my step lest I should bump into someone. The sidewalks are crowded in the central parts of the city, and the streets are thick with rickshaws, motor cars and people on foot. There is not enough space on the sidewalks for all the people walking about.
Shops of many kinds have goods on display. Hongkong is noted as a good place for tourists to buy jade, lace work and carved ivory. Across the bay, in the city of Kowloon, I visited half a dozen shops where carved chests are made and sold. In two or three shops, work was going on while I was watching.
"How long did it take you to make this chest?" I asked a man in one place. He told me it had taken him three weeks, and that the price was $20 in Chinese money—about eight dollars in our money.
In both Hongkong and Kowloon the people have the custom of hanging clothes above the sidewalks after washing them. The clothes are held up by bamboo poles which extend from balconies. While going "around town," I saw dozens of apartment buildings with clothing hanging out. The buildings were three or four stories high, and people of every floor had their "wash" in plain view.

Man Resents Wedlock Most Because He Feels Bound

BY DOROTHY DIX
What do most men resent about matrimony? Well, there are plenty of places where the domestic yoke galls a man and gives him a pain in the neck. But I think the thing he dislikes most about marriage is the sense it gives him of being bound.

Somehow the knowledge that he is no longer free to roam awakens the wanderlust in the bosom of the most plodding, unadventurous, sit-by-the-fire man. It is the call of the wild that is all the more alluring because he knows that he has locked himself in his doghouse, tight and fast, and cannot break out and run with the pack again.
No matter how happy a marriage is, it is still bondage. No matter how beautiful a home is, it is still a cage. No matter how good a wife is, or how much her husband loves her, she is still his keeper. The married man has forfeited his personal liberty. He can no longer come and go as he pleases. He cannot eat what he likes. He cannot dress as he pleases. He cannot even choose his friends. He cannot even choose his hobbies. He cannot even choose his friends. He cannot even choose his hobbies.

He has to punch the home time clock on the dot or else the little woman wants to know what about it. And if he stays downtown to play poker with the boys, or takes an old girl friend out to lunch he has to perjure his soul inventing a lie that will get by with the wife. It isn't that the average man wants to do anything wild and outbreking. It is just the feeling that he is bound hand and foot, and can't do as he likes that gets upon his nerves.

The next thing that men resent about matrimony is having to support their families instead of spending their money upon themselves and their own pleasures. Of course, men will rise and with one voice deny this, but it is true, nevertheless, as is amply proved by the fact that the great majority of husbands run over the household bills and make the first of the month an ordeal almost as much to be dreaded as the Judgment Day by their wives.

This is but nature, for few of us are so altruistic that we really enjoy sacrificing ourselves for others, and so it is no wonder that if a man has to have to buy his wife a new evening dress when he needs an overcoat, or that he turns sour when he has to give up a fishing trip to have little Johnny's children out. If only wives and children could grow feathers and live on air there wouldn't be so many grumpy married men making wisecracks about marriage.

It may be said that whether men are married or single they spend most of the money they make on women anyway, so what difference does it make to them whether they spend it on paying for certified milk for the baby, or opening champagne for a chorus girl? But it does make a difference. Lots of it. Because in one case a man feels that he is getting a run for his money and in the other case it just goes for a plain duty and there is no kick in that. That is why many a man who was a generous lover makes a tightwad husband.

The next thing that men resent in marriage is the nagging of their wives. A grown-up man who has sufficient intelligence to make a living and win a respectable place in the world, simply loathes having his wife treat him as if he were an imbecile child who had not sense enough to know how to cross a street without being told to watch out for the automobiles, or judgment enough to be able to pick out his own food. Also, it makes every man fighting mad to have his wife harp forever on the same old theme and never to be able to say a thing once and let it rest at that.

It is the never-ending fault-finding, the ceaseless interference with personal habits and tastes, the eternal "why don't you do this?" "why did you do that?" that turns marriage into purgatory for innumerable men. A man is more afraid of his wife's tongue than he is of anything else on earth, and if only she won't nag he will forgive every other sin in the category.

And still another thing that men resent in marriage is its dullness. Its monotony. Its lack of pep. That wasn't what they had bargained for when they took their wives on as life partners. They thought that the pretty little fibbers of men who

GRANDFATHER GIVES BRIDE AWAY

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a problem which I have never seen answered in your column, and I hope you will not think it too unusual to print. My mother died when I was a baby and I went to live with my grandparents, her parents. My father could not take care of me then. Finally these grandparents legally adopted me and I took their name. They were very young grandparents. My own father married again quite some years after my mother died and as soon as he had a home of his own I went to visit them often. His wife is very sweet and we are very fond of each other. But naturally my grandparents as you might call "my first love." Now I'm to be married. I want to do the right thing to every one concerned. With this thought in mind, do you think my father or grandfather should walk up the aisle with me and give me away and whose names should appear on the wedding invitations and announcements?
Answer: Since you have always lived with your grandparents and they have given you their name, it seems to me that they should be permitted to give you the wedding, and in this case send invitations in their names. But whether your father or your grandfather walks up the aisle with you and gives you away is a question which you, knowing both people and the circumstances better than any one else, can alone decide. At first thought, it seems to me that your grandfather would naturally be the one to take you up the aisle and give you away. On the other hand, the custom is so fixed that a father shall have the privilege of giving away his daughter that it is a controversial one. Perhaps, in this very exceptional case, one could walk up the aisle with you and the other give you away. I should say your father would walk up the aisle and your grandfather, who is your parent by adoption as well as your grandfather, be the one chosen to give you away. There is of course no rule or precedent by which I am giving this advice and it is therefore offered merely as a suggestion.

Dear Mrs. Post: When dear old friends give the bride her wedding, are the invitations engraved at the marriage of their friends? And in this case, is it in good taste to engrave the bride's name with a title?
Answer: Invitations are engraved "at the marriage of" and the bride's name is prefixed with a title.

Dear Mrs. Post: When writing on the inside envelope of wedding invitations and announcements, is the name supposed to be written out this way: Mr. and Mrs. John D. Smith, or may it be shortened to Mr. and Mrs. Smith?
Answer: The name may be written in full or shortened. Sometimes, for the names of younger members of the family are written on this inner envelope, such as for example: "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" and on the line below "Dora and Tommy".

Trailer Library Gives Curb Service in Books

Denver—(AP)—"I couldn't get to the library" no longer will be an excuse, in Denver, for not reading books.
A special trailer has been constructed and fitted with shelves to hold 1,500 books. It will travel about the city, like an ice cream wagon, with a bell to herald its approach.
If anyone wants a book he just runs out to the curb, calls the number and the library stops long enough for him to select one. Inside the "perambulator," with the books, is space for the desk of a librarian.
In addition to traveling about various neighborhood streets, the trailer will be parked on certain days in parks and on busy intersections.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

BY ALAN LEWIS

SYNOPSIS: Our unexpressed love for a young English girl has kept my uncle, James Clyde, and myself (Paul Thorne) in tropical Balingong through a Dyak revolt and Malay defeat. Christine Forrester, visioning a great empire here, has made Clyde rajah. Famine strikes and war with the Malays threatens. This is a life's work and we persuade Christine to leave. She balks on the verge of departure, and emotional strain for the three of us results.

Chapter 37

OUR FIRST VISITOR

Only one thing enabled us to wait the famine out--we were not to blame. Over and over this thing happened in these islands. If Clyde could succeed, the day would come when it would not happen again in Balingong. We could only wait now, harass the Malay river-traders, and think about the new crop. "When the rice crop comes in--" That single refrain haunted every moment of our lives.

We had a slight diversion at last, when the Avon returned, sick old Captain Stocker doggedly retaining his post. And a little after that we had another diversion which interested us a great deal more.

A square-bowed, tubby little brig, heavily and practically armed, came stealing its way cautiously through the pass into Siderong bay. It brought us Myneer van der Draggan, the first white visitor that the new rajah of Balingong had had. We had known, of course, that great comment would be caused, and perhaps even unfavorable official notice, by Robert Forrester's reappearance in Singapore; it might be that British and Dutch inquiries would be set up as to what we were doing in Balingong. This possibility was one we had to ignore. After all, we could not keep our operations here concealed forever. We saw in van der Draggan the first of many who would wish to know what we were about.

Myneer van der Draggan was a short, globular man, whom his Chinese tailors must long ago have given up trying to fit. In crumpled whites of European cut, he somehow managed to resemble those fat Asiatic gods of good fortune who sit mound-like and bare-stomached, with money bags on their knees. He was as genial and beaming as they, but there was this difference: Myneer van der Draggan's stomach was covered with pongee shirting, and his stomach was on his knees.

He had a voice that was rich and soothing, and his accentless English had none of that bristling thick-tongued quality which the continentals of northern Europe mostly give it. He made the language sound as liquid as Spanish or Italian.

Man Of Affairs

We already slightly knew this man; and it is a good indication of both his ability and his essential character when I say that he was one of the few men connected with the archipelago trade whom my

By VICTOR EUBANK
New York (AP)—A general retreat got under way in today's stock market, with leaders falling back fractions to more than 2 points.

While dealings were rather quiet throughout, volume picked up a bit from recent sessions. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

Brokers found news, marketwise, no more disheartening than in the last several weeks. In fact, there were occasional items more pleasing than otherwise, but these only served as buoying factors in isolated cases.

Steels, along with others, edged forward at the start. They eventually led the decline.

Conspicuous on the downside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Crucible, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, common and preferred, Westinghouse, American Can, Allied Chemical, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, Boeing, Dome Mines, Anaconda, Kennecott, Standard Oil of N. J., Santa Fe, Chesapeake and Ohio, Alis Chalmers, Johns-Manville, Union Carbide and U. S. Gypsum.

Most utilities were only a shade in arrears.

Today's Market At a Glance

New York (AP)—Stocks heavy; leaders in slow decline.

Bonds easy; low-priced rails under new pressure.

Curb irregular; utilities and specialties lower.

Foreign exchange lower; sterling and francs in supply.

Cotton lower; liquidation and foreign selling.

Coffee steady; trade buying.

Chicago: Wheat lower; Winnipeg liquidation heavy.

Corn firm; some export buying.

Cattle strong.

Hogs 10-25 higher.

Steel Operations Will Show Gain During Week

New York (AP)—Operations in the steel industry for the current week will advance .6 of one point to 29.9 per cent of capacity, compared with 29.3 per cent last week, the American Iron and Steel Institute estimated today.

A month ago operations were at the rate of 30.7 per cent of capacity, while a year ago they stood at 27.3 per cent.

Seek Automobile in Which Chauffeur Met His Death

Racine (AP)—Coast guardsmen began dragging the Root river today in search of the automobile in which Krank Knospe, 60, chauffeur for A. J. Horlick of the Malted Milk company, plunged to death last Dec. 24.

Knospe's body was found Saturday floating in the harbor near the mouth of the river.

Coast Guard Captain Henry Rogers said three unidentified persons, a man, woman and child, had been seen with Knospe before the accident and that they might have drowned with him.

Wheat Prices at Lowest Point of Current Season

Heavy Selling of May Wheat at Winnipeg Is Primary Factor

Chicago (AP)—Despite transient advances, wheat fell here today to the lowest level touched in 1938, and in some cases reached a season new bottom price record.

Heavy liquidating sales of May wheat at Winnipeg formed the chief incentive for selling pressure in Chicago. A decrease however, of nearly 2,000,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total led to something of a rally at the last.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1 1/2 under Saturday's finish, May 89 1/2, July 84 1/2, corn unchanged to 1 higher, May 58 1/2-59, July 60 1/2, and oats 1 1/2 to 1 up.

New York (AP)—The bond market slipped to lower ground today, with losses of 1 to around 3 points common in the list of railroad bonds.

Baltimore and Ohio issues met new pressure. The refunding 5s, refunding 5s of '95 and 4s '48 were down 2 points or more. United States treasury obligations were mixed.

Hog Quotations in Sharp Advances

Chicago (AP)—Hog prices rose 10 to 25 cents today, returning to a $10 top for the first time since last October.

Light receipts, together with strength in wholesale pork quotations despite lent were responsible for the upturn. The supply totaled only 15,000 head, 3,000 less than expected.

Fat lambs followed hogs on the upturn, gaining 15 to 25 cents, with the top rising to $9.60, almost $2 higher than the three-year low a fortnight ago.

Cattle shared in the strength but there was only a slight upturn in prices. The early top was $10. Heifers gained 10 to 15 cents but vealers lost 50 cents.
